5 bodies unidentified; Patty Hearst fate unknown

By CHARLES HINCH, NOEL SWANN, MIKE JELF
Staff Writers

Five apparent members of the Symbionese Liberation Army died in the rubble of a burned-out house in South Los Angeles Friday night after an hour-long shootout with 175 Los Angeles policemen and FBI agents.

Officers declined to speculate whether one of the charred bodies in the burned-out, one-story stucco house at 1466 E. 54th St. was that of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst, who the SLA claimed to have kidnapped last Feb. 4.

Officers seemed certain those in the house had been members of the militant radical group, but they said the bodies were so badly charred identification could take several hours or days.

In fact, a spokesman added, the bodies were so badly burned it was difficult to determine their sexes.

Unconfirmed reports at the scene said a woman who lived in the house, and who was taken from the scene in handcuffs by police, claimed to have seen Miss Hearst there early Friday morning.

However, Friday night William Sullivan, agent in charge of the FBI's Los Angeles office, refused to speculate about who may have died in the house, except to say they were almost certainly members of the SLA.

While police refused to speculate about the fate of Miss Hearst, and FBI Director Clarence Kelley denied reports that he had been told she died, a Hearst family spokesman in Hillsborough struck a somber note:

"The feeling inside the Hearst home is it's all over," said John Lester. "We just hope to God that Patty is somewhere else."

A police sergeant who crawled near to the embattled house said at one point the smoke cleared enough to let him see the bodies of two women lying on the floor at the rear of the house.

The women, one black and one white, made no movement, although their clothing was aflame, he said.

Police sources said the woman who lived in the house, 34-year-old Christine Johnson, had said she recognized reputed SLA members Nancy Ling Perry and Donald DeFreeze ("Field Marshal Cinque") as being among those who stayed at her home.

According to other unconfirmed reports, the persons who battled police Friday evening had paid Ms. Johnson $100 to stay there overnight.

Los Angeles police Inspector Peter Hagan said officers had been led to the house by tips from neighbors who were concerned that persons there were stockpiling arms.

In fact, Hagan said, it was one of three houses in the area police had been watching Friday as possible SLA hiding spots.

The force of Los Angeles police and FBI agents moved in on the site shortly before 6 p.m., when a uniformed police sergeant yelled through a bullhorn that the house was surrounded, and that the occupants should surrender.

The sergeant was answered with a burst of automatic gunfire, Hagan said, which was followed by 50 caliber machine-gun fire from both the front and the rear of the building.

Panel cuts arms fund

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Armed Services Committee Friday cut $1.3 billion from the 1975 defense budget but granted a controversial administration request for more accurate nuclear warheads for the Minuteman missile.

Slashed from the bill were $700 million in arms aid to South Vietnam, $500 million for Navy shipbuilding and about $250 million for transport and bomber aircraft.

The committee also decreed across-the-board military manpower cuts of about 2 per cent — a total of 49,000 men — and told the administration to cut 23,000 men from American forces in Europe over the next two years. The committee, however, said support troops could be replaced with combat forces.

Also voted was a freeze on U.S. tactical nuclear weapons in Europe pending a study by the secretary of Defense on ways to reduce the current total of 7,000 and provide for a "coordinated nuclear posture" within the North Atlantic alliance.

The measure now going to the Senate floor calls for $21.8 billion in arms spending next year. The administration had asked for $23.1 billion, and the House Armed Services committee earlier cut that to $22.6 billion.

The bill was cleared from committee several months earlier than usual, and Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., the chairman, told a news conference, "I'm not blind to a lot of the talk that's going on" about an impeachment trial that could tie up the Senate later this year and stall action on vital legislation.

But he added, "I don't accept yet the fact that we're going to have an impeachment trial."

The only controversial committee action centered on the nuclear arms proposal. The committee reversed by a vote of 13-2 a recommendation of its research and development subcommittee and restored $77 million to develop bigger and more accurate warheads for the Minuteman.

133 hurt in train tumble

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI)—The last four cars of the Southern Railway's Crescent passenger train tumbled down a 75-foot embankment Friday, yanking the other six off the track and injuring 133 of the 168 persons aboard.

Only one of the injured was in serious condition, according to a spokesman at Druid City Hospital here, and only 11 of the 133 were admitted to the hospital.

The most serious injury was a broken neck suffered by Mrs. R. M. Garner of Hattiesburg, Miss.

SEVEN OF the 10 cars of the Southern Railway train were turned on their side and four of those were resting at the bottom of the embankment, about 40 feet from the side of U.S. 11 at Cottondale, a suburban community about 10 miles northeast of here.

"I heard this loud crack, like a rail breaking, and then these cars came tumbling down that bank," said E. H. Gilliland, who owns a service station across the road from the wreck.

Gilliland said railroad company crews had been working at the site for the past two days.

An attendant at the station, B. P. Brown, said, "I was standing in front of the station. I saw the trees coming down, and then I saw the train coming behind the trees."

H. L. BISHOP, superintendent of the line's Crescent Division, said there were 168 persons aboard the train, including a crew of five.

The train, en route from New Orleans to Washington, had interim stops scheduled here and at Birmingham. It had just left the local station when the derailment happened about 1 p.m.

Jill Roberts, a young dark-haired woman in her 20s from New Orleans, was on the train on her way to a vacation spot in Pennsylvania.

"We hit a bump," she said. "It was like running over a big log. It went thud, thud. Then there was screeching. Then the cars turned over."

Car bombs rip Dublin; 22 dead, 100 injured

DUBLIN (AP)—Three powerful bombs planted in parked cars exploded during the Friday evening rush hour, leaving dead and injured strewn in the streets of downtown Dublin.

Police said at least 22 persons were killed and more than 100 injured, dozens critically, when the bombs exploded in a 20-minute period. They expected the death toll to rise.

Another bomb outside a bar in Monaghan, 80 miles north near the Northern Ireland border, killed five persons and injured at least 20, authorities said.

"There were limbs and bits of torn clothing all over the street," said a witness in Dublin. "... One woman lay dreadfully mutilated.... I heard women and children crying in hysterics."

CONOR CRUISE O'Brien, a veteran of the United Nations force that quelled the bloody Congo massacres of 16 years ago, cried "Oh, my God!" when he walked out of his office into devastated Parnell Street moments after a bomb went off.

Among the victims he saw a baby girl whose mother had been wheeling her in a carriage yards from the explosive-packed car O'Brien, now minister of posts and telegraph, turned his ministry building into a first-aid station.

Ambulances screamed down the ruined streets. Dazed survivors staggered through the rubble past dead and maimed Dubliners who had been on their way out of the city for the weekend. Dublin's six hospitals were jammed.

The fire department declared the bombed parts of the city "a major disaster area."

BOTH THE Irish Republican Army (IRA) and the militant Protestant Ulster Defense Association (UDA) — the two groups responsible for most of the fighting in the North — denied responsibility for the bombings.

So far, the republic had suffered relatively little from terrorism. The worst previous terrorist incident in the south was an attack on the Irish parliament in 1972 in which two persons were killed and 120 wounded. It came during a debate on legislation to crack down on the IRA, which is trying to throw the British out of the North.

Bomb-scarred Northern Ireland, where more than 1,000 persons have died in sectarian fighting since 1969, was confronted Friday with a paralyzing general strike. It was called by hardline Protestants who fear an agreement for greater cooperation between North and South is the first step toward union.

Newsman Mike O'Shea said he was in the usual Dublin rush-hour traffic jam when the blasts went off, showering glass over the home-bound commuters.

"PEOPLE WERE screaming and running everywhere, some of them bleeding," he said. "I got one young man with a deep leg gash and a head wound into my car and drove him to the hospital. He said he had been lifted off his feet by the blast."

Prime Minister Liam Cosgrave of Ireland said the explosions would bring home to the people of the republic what their neighbors in the North had been suffering for the past five years.

He said his government did not yet know who was responsible for the disaster, but he asserted that "everyone who has preached violence must bear a share of the blame."

Police said the Dublin blasts, in three separate areas of the city, came without warning.

Every hospital in Dublin was mobilized to handle the flood of casualties. Off-duty personnel were ordered back to work.

Every ambulance was summoned to haul away victims from three rubble-strewn downtown streets. City buses were also commandeered.

After the blasts, women could be seen clutching bleeding children. The legs of a dead man protruded from under the wheels of a car that was blown through a shop window. Blood trickled into the gutter from two bodies lying under coats in South Leinster Street.

HOTEL PORTER

Christie Drury, 45, said he was blown off his feet at the door of the Gresham Hotel. The blast came from one of the bombs in Parnell Street, 250 yards away.

Transcript suggests possible perjury

Mitchell resignation linked to Watergate

By DAVID E. ROSENBAUM
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The transcript of President Nixon's June 30, 1973, conversation with John N. Mitchell and H. R. Halde-man shows that the three men related Mitchell's resignation as the President's campaign director to the Watergate burglary.

Last year, Mitchell said in testimony before the Senate Watergate committee that his resignation was the subject of the June 30 conversation, but he swore that he had resigned solely because of family responsibilities and not because of the Watergate case. His resignation was announced the day after the June 30 conversation.

Some members of the House Judiciary Committee said Friday that Nixon could be considered culpable for not reporting Mitchell's alleged false statement under oath to authorities, but the members agreed that it was highly unlikely that the matter would become the basis for an article of impeachment.

A portion of the tape of the June 30 meeting was heard in closed session Wednesday during the Judiciary Committee's impeachment hearing, and the transcript of that portion has been published in several newspapers in the last two days. The transcript was not one of those made public by the White House.

Mitchell's lawyer said Friday that his client would stand by his testimony to the Senate committee.

In his Watergate committee testimony last July, Mitchell was asked by Sen. Herman E. Tamm, D-Ga., why he had resigned as campaign director.

Mitchell replied, "I had some long-range telephone and publicized threats (from his wife, Martha) that if I didn't get out of politics, I was

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic — President Joaquin Balaguer easily won re-election to another term Friday but widescale abstention and numerous disqualified ballots indicated significant voter dissatisfaction. Though returns from Thursday's balloting were still trickling in, Balaguer held an unbeatable margin over his opponent, Luis Homero Lajara Burgos, 32, candidate of the small, right-wing Popular Democratic Party, who conceded defeat. The conservative Balaguer's bid for a third four-year term was assured earlier in the week when his principal opponent, Silvestre Antonio Guzman, a liberal, dropped out after charging the government with using massive fraud to keep Balaguer in power. Guzman's coalition, which included both Communists and right-wingers, urged supporters to abstain from voting and the partial returns indicated that as many as 40 or 50 per cent of the country's two million registered voters stayed home.

CHESTER, Ill. — About 60 prisoners seized control of a cell block and held four guards hostage for several hours at the Menard Correctional Center Friday before releasing them and ending their rebellion. None of the hostages were harmed during the ordeal, which began six hours earlier in the 96-year-old prison on the banks of the Mississippi River southeast of St. Louis. No ultimatums had been made by prison officials and no promises given. But prison officials were reported meeting with prisoners on their grievances after the hostages were released.

LIMA, Peru — A violent earthquake shook a vast area of central Peru Friday, causing panic among residents of several towns in the Andes mountains. The quake, which measured 5.8 on the Richter scale, was felt for 30 seconds in Lima although its epicenter was located 220 miles east of there and 60 miles below the earth's crust. But reports on damage and casualties were not expected for possibly a week from the towns of Atalaya, Puerto Prado, Oxapampa, Comas and in the El Sepa penal colony in the central Andes mountain range where the quake was most severe. Many of the towns are accessible only by air or river canoe and have no road or telephone communication with the outside world.

LISBON — The Portuguese government said Friday it will begin cease-fire negotiations with Portuguese Guinea rebels in London on May 25. A spokesman said Portugal's socialist Foreign Minister Mario Soares will represent the government in talks with leaders of the African Party for the Independence of Guinea-Bissau. The agreement was the first breakthrough in the Lisbon government's efforts to end guerrilla wars it has been fighting in Guinea-Bissau, Angola and Mozambique for 13 years.

MOSCOW — Chinese diplomats have told westerners in Moscow that three Soviet helicopter pilots detained in China probably will be brought to trial for espionage, diplomatic sources reported Friday. But some western experts in Sino-Soviet relations doubted the Russians would be put on trial and saw the Chinese statements as part of a policy of making the Soviets squirm.

Judges' trial-fixing attempts alleged in opened court files

By MARY NEISWENDER Staff Writer

Repeated and direct attempts by Municipal Court Judges Joan Dempsey Klein and Vincent Erickson to pressure another judge to "dump" the Sylmar Tunnel disaster case were alleged Friday with the release of previously sealed court documents.

A five-page statement by Long Beach Municipal Court Judge George Trammell and seven pages of transcripts and copies of court docket sheets were unsealed Friday on order of Judge Everette Porter. Judges Klein and Erickson, however, revealed their identities Thursday in a news conference and denied the charges.

I called the police and they told me there wasn't anything they could do about it. Can a tow company legally take a car away without the owner's permission? J.C., Buena Park.

No, it was a misunderstanding. Leo Hansen, owner of Cypress Auto Tow, told ACTION LINE the Cypress police phoned his company, which has the towing contract for the city, and asked them to clear the intersection after your daughter's car collided with another automobile. He said his driver went out, moved one car from the intersection and then, under the impression the police wanted both cars moved, called Hansen to come out in another truck to get the second car involved. Hansen told us he had just backed up to your daughter's car, which was parked at the curb, when a woman ran over to him telling him to leave it alone. "Under no circumstances," he told us, "would we tow a car without either the police or the owner asking us to." According to Lt. Interest

In September, 1971, I was divorced and, in a state of shock, left to stay with my parents back East. I forgot to pay my attorney's fee and my bill was turned over in Collection Control Bureau of Sherman Oaks. My bill was for $650 but the collection agency charged $741.80. I called the collection agency to find out why the bill was $91.80 more and they said they were charging me interest. I paid the bill on Dec. 6, 1973, but want to know if the collection agency has a legal right to charge me interest. V.H., Garden Grove.

Under state law collection agencies can charge 7 per cent interest per year on bills due, according to a spokesman for the state Bureau of Collection and Investigation Services. Your interest charge was 14 per cent since it was about two years after you incurred the debt that you paid it.

Apparently your manuscript is lost. At ACTION LINE'S request, Herminio Rios, chief of the literature division of the publishing firm, searched for your article but couldn't find it. He said he remembered seeing it months ago and knew they did not plan to publish it. He said he'd send it to you if it turns up. Rios said they receive a great number of manuscripts but since they have a limited staff, they, like most other publishing firms, do not respond to letters about unsolicited manuscripts because of the time involved. Writers always should retain copies of manuscripts they submit.

Physician examine thyself?

I understand all hospital employees are required to have annual physical examinations. Does this include doctors who are on the staff? If not, why are they exempt? D.G., Long Beach.

Doctors who are full-time employees of a hospital are supposed to undergo a physical examination and a tuberculosis test once a year, according to a spokesman for the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. The same state-wide regulation applies to all other hospital employees — nurses, lab technicians, clerks. Doctors who are on the staff of a hospital, but who are not salaried employees aren't covered by this regulation. It's unclear why staff doctors aren't included, but state officials apparently believe physicians presumably are skilled enough to detect any personal health problems.

her amazement that the case was so lengthy and posed the question, "Is there any way the case could be dumped?" But, he said, both judges were very upset that the case had gone as long as it had.

Judge Erickson indicated that he was getting tired of reading about the Lockheed case in the newspapers and, in his opinion, the case was only a lousy misdemeanor which was giving the court a black eye, and something had to be done about it. He stated that everything was going to have to be done to terminate the case. He stated that no misdemeanor trial was worth taking up as much time as the Lockheed case was.

"Judge Erickson asked how I intended to rule on the motion for dismissal under 1118.1. I indicated to him that I had not decided it; that the matter was under submission, and I frankly did not know what I was going to do; that I still had research to do on my own. I told him that the issues were substantial and ones which, in my opinion were very close with no clean-cut law on either side. Judge Erickson stated if that were the case, I should rule in favor of the defendants (Lockheed). He stated that the defense attorneys' fees were probably quite high and that that was ample punishment for the defendants without having to go on and get a conviction."

In a conversation with Klein, Trammell said that she told him not to worry about a reversal in the case because the People would not have any right of appeal out of an adverse ruling under 1118.1.

Trammell said that he expressed his indignation at the pressure being exerted but that Klein said she was "just trying to keep me from getting on the wrong side of Erickson."

"She then stated that if the motion was not granted that Judge Erickson was going to enter the case himself and attempt to settle it by way of a plea bargain. She indicated that this would be done without me."

"She then indicated to me that unless the case was terminated either by granting the 1118.1 motion or by a plea-bargain disposition, that Judge Erickson would have people sitting in my courtroom taking a minute-by-minute log of what went on in the courtroom, and that I would have a hard time justifying to anyone the time the case was taking."

Trammell, in the statement, said he, thereafter, refused to meet with the two judges despite "orders" that he appear in Erickson's chambers. At one point, he said, he was told that he "would regret it in the future" if he did not follow orders. However, he said, he refused.

Trammell had cited the two judges for their conduct in the court documents and then sealed the documents to prevent any possible mistrial, he said at the time. He did not reveal the names of the judges or the circumstances. However, he forwarded the material to the California Commission on Judicial Qualifications. The commission without holding hearings or calling witnesses, labeled the charges "totally unwarranted and without foundation."

Prisoner faces new term in kidnap plot

An alleged "supercriminal," already serving prison sentences for hijacking a commercial airliner in 1972 and participating in a 1971 kidnap-robbery at the Princess Louise restaurant, will be sentenced May 28 in Los Angeles on his newest conviction — conspiracy to kidnap a foreign diplomat and hold him for ransom.

Garrett Brock Trapnell, 36, was found guilty by a six-man, six-woman jury after six hours of deliberation. His trial in federal court in Los Angeles ended just days after his alleged accomplices — Robert Bernard Hedberg, 37, and Maria Theresa Alonzo, 22, pleaded guilty to a lesser charge.

They will be sentenced May 28 on charges of conspiracy to assist in an escape.

The three were arraigned March 11 after FBI agents said they had uncovered a plot to kidnap a consul general from one of eight countries — Estonia, Paraguay, Uruguay, Canada, France, Germany, Switzerland or Haiti.

Agents alleged the conspiracy involved kidnapping the foreign diplomat and holding him for a predetermined ransom — which was to have included $250,000 in cash and the release of Trapnell and Hedberg from Los Angeles County Jail.

Hedberg, who has a 20-year record of heroin-related arrests, was arrested Jan. 29 in San Pedro on a warrant charging unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for an alleged assault on a police officer.

During the trio's arraignment, Asst. U.S. Atty. Robert Perry said Miss Alonzo, a former follower of Charles Manson who is also known as Karen Marie Forbes, "came perilously close to commission...of the kidnapping."

He added that the kidnapping, which would have involved the U.S. and another country, could have "brought this country to its knees."

Keep drug ads, FTC proposes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The staff of the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has proposed voiding widespread state bans on advertising prices for prescription drugs.

A report by the commission's drug industry task force estimates Americans are spending $6.4 billion a year on prescription drugs. Competitive price advertising could shave between $1.1 billion and $10 billion off that bill over the next 10 years, the staff said.

The staff report, one phase of a broad investigation into the drug industry, is due for formal commission consideration next week.

Laws and regulations in about 20 states prohibit pharmacies from advertising the prices of their prescription drugs or posting price lists in their stores. And a tradition of not advertising persists in several other states, even though formal restraints have fallen.

Consequently, said the commission staff, "consumers do not know that the price of the same products varies substantially from store to store."

To demonstrate the point, the staff compared drug prices in various cities. In one city the same drug could cost either $2.60 or $8.00, depending on which pharmacy the buyer patronized.

An end to the advertising bans has been urged on states by the U.S. Department of Justice and a host of consumer groups, and the barriers have been falling.

The Food and Drug Administration says 11 states have revoked advertising bans since 1962. In the first federal court decision on the issue, a U.S. District Court in Richmond, Va., last March declared the state's anti-advertising law unconstitutional.

But the FTC could create a short cut through state-by-state action if it invoked its power to outlaw unfair practices and declared the prescription drug advertising bans to be unfair.

COMMISSIONER Mayo J. Thompson had originally proposed that the commission consider either overturning advertising barriers or adopting a commission position advocating an end to such prohibitions and circulating the position paper to state officials.

The staff paper mentioned the position-paper approach as an alternative. But voiding the anti-advertising barriers outright would constitute the most significant move economically of any of the various consumer-protection measures before the agency, the staff said.

FTC sources conceded that attempting to preempt state law could raise serious questions about the commission's jurisdiction. But the sources said the commission could at the least outlaw barriers to advertising by pharmacies involved in interstate commerce, and other measures would have to become competitive.

Pharmacists have contended that open advertisement of prescription drugs would foster drug abuse and hinder pharmacists' attempts to keep track of what drugs a person is taking so the patient can avoid antagonistic drugs.

Opponents of the barriers have argued that other regulations of prescription drugs provide adequate protection.

IN A 1971 report the U.S. Department of Justice and advertising of prices for prescription drugs is forbidden by law or regulation in these states:

Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Oklahoma, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Texas, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Cigarette trade ban defeated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission Friday rejected, 3-2, a request to ban cigarettes from interstate trade on the grounds they are a health hazard.

The commission voted against a petition from the American Public Health Association and Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, that asked it to forbid interstate shipment of cigarettes with more than 21 milligrams of tar.

The commission said that would, in effect, require it to set maximum tar levels for cigarettes. The majority held that the commission had neither the authority nor the jurisdiction to do that.

The commission chairman, Richard O. Simpson, and Commissioner David Little voted in favor of the interstate ban.

An anti-smoking organization, Action on Smoking and Health (ASH), criticized the decision as "incorrect and premature" and said it would ask the commission to reopen the issue with public hearings.

"With only one vote at stake, and some 300,000 Americans still dying each year of cigarette smoking, it seems to me that's the least they can do," said John Banzhaf, executive director of ASH.

Consumer bill wins panel's OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill described by backers as the broadest consumer protection legislation ever considered by Congress was approved Friday by the Senate Government Operations Committee.

The bill earlier was approved by the Senate Commerce Committee, which also had jurisdiction over some provisions of the bill. A similar measure already has won approval of the full House.

THE BILL would create an agency to represent consumer interests before federal regulatory boards and in the courts. It would act as a clearinghouse for consumer complaints.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said the bill is aimed at halting misleading advertising, meaningless warranties, deceptive packaging, bait-and-switch marketing and low-quality goods and services.

UNLIKE federal regulatory agencies, the new consumer board would have no authority to set rates or grant licenses or to impose penalties against violators.

However, the agency's administrator, to be appointed by the President subject to Senate confirmation, would be empowered to pursue any consumer complaint through the courts or the federal regulatory procedures.

Steering in some GM cars faulty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Transportation says the steering wheels of certain 1969 and 1970 General Motors automobiles can fail without warning.

The department's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said it had received reports from 15 owners indicating that the steering wheel on certain models can break apart at the hub, leaving the driver holding a useless steering wheel.

The potential problem has been found in 1969 Camaros and in 1969 and 1970 full-sized Chevrolets, Novas and Chevelles, NHTSA said. The agency said it had received no reports of serious injury or fatalities resulting from the failures.

'Nation misled by leaks,' Ziegler says

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House spokesman said Friday that the result of leaks from the House impeachment inquiry is that the country is being misled about the facts seriously and in a calculated way.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the leaks from the House Judiciary Committee's closed hearings have violated not only the panel's own rules "but the most basic sense of fairness and justice."

ZIEGLER'S comments, made in Key Biscayne, Fla., where President Nixon is spending the weekend, came after leaks two days this week of secret evidence presented before the committee.

The committee has completed four days of hearings, and members are divided whether the evidence helps or hurts Nixon.

Republicans generally agree that nothing they have heard points to Nixon's involvement in the Watergate break-in and cover-up. Some Democrats say a strong case against Nixon is building up.

In a telephone interview with a reporter, Ziegler said: "Certain members of the committee and staff have practiced neither order, nor discipline, nor due process, and the result is that the country is being seriously — and in a calculated way — misled about the facts."

Ziegler suggested there was a good argument that the hearings be opened to the public.

No date has been set for opening the hearings, but it will not be next week.

MEANWHILE, presidential lawyer J. Fred Buzhardt told newsmen that in transcribing tapes already in the possession of the Judiciary Committee, the White House had not taken as much care in marking deletions since the panel would be hearing the tapes themselves.

"I think this was an error," Buzhardt said.

He defended the edited transcripts saying, "I don't think you will find a great deal of difference between these and any other transcripts that are prepared carefully."

Asked about reports that racial slurs, including "Jewboy," appear on at least one of the tapes, Buzhardt repeated his earlier assertion that the phrase was "just not there."

He said the word Jewish was used but "I'm not going to tell you the context."

Then he added, "We have not dropped the subject at all," but he wouldn't say if that meant the White House was considering making public the section where the word appeared.

ASKED about the Judiciary Committee's request for an answer to its letter seeking material for its investigation of the ITT antitrust case and political contributions from the dairy industry, Buzhardt said "we are clearly leaving the door open."

But he wouldn't say what the response, expected to go to the panel on Monday, would be.

The Judiciary Committee has scheduled its next closed meeting for Tuesday.

The detailed, chronological presentation of evidence has not yet reached March 21, 1973, the date of a crucial conversation between Nixon and his former counsel, John Dean, about the payment of hush money to the Watergate defendants.

The committee's attitude also could be affected by Nixon's response to a subpoena ordering him to deliver 11 more Watergate tapes by next Wednesday.

But on the basis of four long cram sessions, during which they have digested more than 100 "statements of factual information" gathered by the committee staff and listened to three tapes, most members are still waiting to see where the evidence is going to lead.

"PERSONALLY, I'm relieved by what we've heard," said Rep. Trent Lott, R-Miss., regarded as one of Nixon's strong supporters on the committee, after the week's final session Thursday.

"I keep waiting to hear something that will exculpate the President," said Rep. Robert Drinan, D-Mass.

Drinan, a Roman Catholic priest, said the tapes have been much more damaging to Nixon than the edited transcripts Nixon released — except for one point.

He referred to Nixon's comment on Feb. 28, 1973, about the convicted Watergate burglars: "Well, you can follow these characters to their 6th heaven. I feel for those poor guys in jail, particularly for (E. Howard) Hunt with his wife dead."

"It was very moving, very touching," said Drinan. "He sounded as if he really meant it."

THE FIRST full week of hearings ended with a new controversy between the committee and the White House over whether they should be opened to the public. So far they have been closed, and Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., seems determined to keep them that way, at least through next week.

The White House picked up some allies among Democratic members for opening the hearings after transcripts of the first two tapes the committee played were leaked to The Washington Post.

Rodino countered, however, by ordering that all transcripts be collected after each session.

Rodino has closed this phase of the hearings because the evidence being presented includes secret material from the Watergate grand jury that was given to the committee with the understanding it would be kept confidential if possible.

IN PREPARATION for the eventual opening of the sessions, work crews moved into the committee room over the weekend to install equipment that will permit television cameras to be hung from the ceiling.

In related developments:

— Richard L. Allison, former president of a Pennsylvania Dairy cooperative, Lehigh Valley Cooperative Farmers of Allentown, Pa., pleaded guilty in U.S. district court to consenting to an illegal $50,000 corporate contribution to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign. The judge suspended a $1,000 fine and placed Allison on a month's unsupervised probation.

Herbert Kalmbach, former presidential attorney, leaves court following a grand jury hearing regarding President Nixon's statements that ambassadorships are not for sale.

Panel turns up Dean data lag

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee has apparently turned up one major discrepancy in John W. Dean's testimony against President Nixon.

Six members of the committee told UPI after listening to the tape of a Feb. 28, 1973, Nixon-Dean meeting that it failed to confirm Dean's testimony that he revealed his own role in the Watergate cover-up in that conversation.

DEAN, a former White House counsel, is the only man so far who has implicated Nixon in the Watergate cover-up. The White House contends that Dean is lying and earlier this month issued a paper which said there were 16 discrepancies between Dean's Senate testimony and the transcripts of presidential conversations, many of these indicating that Dean was not precise about the dates that he made statements to Nixon about Watergate.

Testifying about the Feb. 28 meeting before the Senate Watergate Committee last summer, Dean said:

"I told him (Nixon) that I thought he should know that I was also involved in the post-June 17 activities regarding Watergate. I briefly described to him why I thought I had legal problems in that I had been a conduit for many of the decisions that were made and therefore could be involved in an obstruction of justice. He would not accept my analysis and did not want me to get into it in any detail... he reassured me not to worry, that I had no legal problem."

"There was nothing in there like that at all — nothing," said Rep. Thomas Railsback, R-Ill.

"No, I heard nothing like that," said Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich.

Four other congressmen interviewed agreed there was no reference to that conversation in the hour-long tape.

The lack of Dean's confession to Nixon of his own involvement in the Watergate case is significant, they said. Nixon has insisted that Dean told him nothing of the Watergate cover-up until a meeting March 21, 1973.

THE EDITED White House transcripts of that March 21 meeting, however, did show a conversation similar to the one Dean testified about to the Watergate committee as occurring on Feb. 28, 1973. The transcripts show Dean outlined how hush money had been paid to the Watergate defendants, his own role and that he felt he could be criminally liable.

"You go to jail?" Nixon asked.

"That's right," Dean replied.

"Oh, hell no!" Nixon said. "I can't see how you can."

Dean then explained in the March 28 transcript he could be charged with obstruction of justice because he had been "a conduit for information on taking care of people out there are are guilty of crimes" but Nixon disagreed.

While there is this apparent discrepancy, Dean's testimony about other major items he discussed with the President on Feb. 28, 1973, are borne out in tapes heard earlier by the committee, and in the edited transcripts released by the White House.

The committee will hear the March 21 tape next week.

Nixon still effective on policy, Ford says

HONOLULU (UPI) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford said Friday he sees no evidence from the White House Watergate transcripts "to convince me that the President's ability to conduct either foreign or domestic policy has been undermined."

Ford said the transcripts "do not confer sainthood on anybody" and repeated his position that the House Judiciary Committee hearings on impeachment should be open to the public.

The vice president made his comments at a news conference after an address to the executives of the Boy Scouts of America's 64th annual convention.

Ford, who arrived here Thursday night, was asked whether he thought opening the House Judiciary Committee hearings to the public might endanger a possible House impeachment and Senate trial of the President.

"The public has very important interests in the proceedings," Ford said, adding that open hearings are necessary to avoid any further leaks of information.

Looking rested after his night at a beachfront hotel, the vice president said, "I see no evidence from the transcripts I've read to convince me that the President's ability to conduct either foreign or domestic policy has been undermined."

Earlier, with a distinguished Eagle Scout award hanging around his neck, Ford stressed the principles of scouting before 2,500 Scout executives.

"The more people we have who do a good turn for another each day, the less suspicion and distrust we will see. The more people we have who believe in truth and honesty, the fewer problems we will have in government."

Kalmbach says Stans was fund 'go-between'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Herbert W. Kalmbach, President Nixon's former lawyer and key fund-raiser, Friday named ex-Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans as the go-between in a $1.1 million gift to an illegal secret 1970 congressional campaign kitty.

In sworn court testimony, Kalmbach also said he "advised Mr. Stans from time to time" that a wealthy Nixon campaign contributor had been promised a European ambassadorship in exchange for a campaign gift.

Kalmbach has pleaded guilty to criminal offenses in connection with both matters. His testimony was the first time Stans has been linked publicly with the campaign gift or the alleged offer to appoint an ambassador.

KALMBACH was called as a witness by Watergate prosecutors who are seeking to force Stans to comply with a grand jury subpoena for various documents believed to deal with "possibly illegal activities" in Republican fund-raising efforts.

Stans, acquitted last month of conspiracy and perjury charges in connection with a Nixon campaign gift from financier Robert L. Vesco, headed the finance arm of Nixon's 1968 and 1972 presidential campaigns and was chairman of the Republican National Finance Committee in 1968.

Kalmbach said he met with Stans at his Commerce Department office in the spring of 1970, at which time he said Stans handed him eight checks totaling $1.1 million signed by New York industrialist John A. Mulcahy and made out to "The Public Institute."

"THERE were seven checks for $150,000 and one for $100,000," Kalmbach testified. "They were post-dated several months ... to Nov. 1, 1970."

He (Stans) indicated I was to take the checks for the senatorial campaign program; that I was to take them back to California to use in that program," Kalmbach testified.

In testimony last year, Kalmbach said that then-White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman tapped him in 1970 to raise money surreptitiously for congressional races that year — a project known informally as "The Public Institute."

Last Feb. 25, Kalmbach pleaded guilty to a felony offense for handling the secret fund, which eventually totaled $3.9 million. At the time of his guilty plea, court records showed only that the fund included $1.1 million from a single donor, who was not further identified.

Kalmbach's testimony Friday was the first indication that Mulcahy was the donor. Mulcahy, described by prosecutors as an industrialist who also has "interests in Ireland," gave $600,000 to Nixon's 1972 campaign and $50,000 to a half-dozen Republican senatorial candidates the same year.

IN FEBRUARY, Kalmbach also pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of promising a European ambassadorship to F. M. Fyfe Symington Jr. — at the time ambassador to Trinidad and Tobago — in exchange for a $100,000 Nixon campaign gift.

"I advised Mr. Stans of my meetings with Mr. Symington and told him of the fact ... I had been authorized to commit to Mr. Symington a future ambassadorial European post," Kalmbach testified.

"I advised Mr. Stans from time to time of this outstanding commitment."

Asked about this matter in March, Nixon replied: "Ambassadorships have not been for sale."

Judge denies Nixon position on donors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. said Friday that he, not President Nixon, will decide whether lists of campaign donors considered for federal jobs will be turned over to the special prosecutor.

Hart cited as precedent the decision of Judge John J. Sirica who took possession of some of the White House tapes to decide himself whether they were relevant to the special prosecutor's investigation.

Hart's decision came in a hearing on the Watergate prosecutor's attempt to subpoena certain political papers said to be in the possession of Maurice H. Stans, former commerce secretary and former chairman of the Finance Committee to Re-Elect the President.

Hart listened to arguments from Robert W. Barker, Stans' attorney, that the lists and other political files, if they exist, are personal papers not subject to subpoena.

"Get them here," the judge ordered finally. "Not today, Monday will do. I'll take a look at them."

Superagency for economy studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration and Congress started formal bipartisan talks Friday that could lead to establishment of a super-planning agency for the nation's troubled economy.

At the same time, the government reported that prices rose at an 11.5 percent annual rate in the first quarter, worse than previous estimates, while the economy declined at a 6.3 per-cent rate.

Top administration economic advisers sent representatives to a meeting with representatives of both Republican and Democratic leaders of the House and Senate to discuss the joint approach to the country's economic problems.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., who initiated the proposals for a planning agency along with Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., disclosed Friday he also met for an hour on the subject with Treasury Secretary William E. Simon.

"I think we see pretty much eye to eye on some sort of a monetary agency to flash storm signals and the like," Mansfield said.

THE significance of the discussions is that they involve both the executive and legislative branches as well as both political parties, although there is no clear consensus on what the results will or should be.

Mansfield said his proposal is entirely different from the unsuccessful administration plan to establish the Cost of Living Council as an inflation-monitoring agency.

One well-placed administration source said he felt Simon is attracted to the idea of a planning agency because he sees it as a way to win a high profile in the administration at a time when he is involved in a power struggle with other economic advisers.

But the spokesman said he feared establishment of such an agency would prove a threat to the free enterprise system, more so even than the administration's wage and price control program that expired April 30.

"If the mechanism is there, there will always be the temptation to use it," he said.

A SOURCE close to Simon said, however, that the secretary has not made any decisions about a planning agency but does favor a joint administration-Congress approach to the country's economic problems.

"A superagency may not be the best mechanism. Maybe an informal approach to working out problems would be better," the sources said.

In addition to Simon, Scott and Mansfield, the group conducting the joint planning includes Budget Director Roy Ash, Chairman Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisers, Director John Dunlop of the Cost of Living Council, presidential assistant Peter Flanagan and Reps. Carl Albert, D-Okla., and John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz.

Their representatives met at the meeting Friday and they are planning another meeting early next week, sources said.

One participant in the meeting said the main purpose of initial planning is to work out a joint approach to such problems as dealing with raw material and other shortages and the need for gathering adequate data about the economy.

THE SENATE Democratic caucus, acting at the urging of Mansfield, has endorsed a proposal to establish an "instrumentality" that would bring together representatives of the legislative and executive branches with representatives of agriculture, business, labor and other private parties "for the purpose of identifying and doing something about areas of potential national crises."

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department issued its revised statistics on the economy for the first three months of the year. Inflation was at an 11.5 per cent rate, compared with its earlier estimate of 10.8 per cent, while the economy declined 6.3 per cent, compared with the earlier 5.8 per cent estimated rate of decline.

The department also reported that corporate profits in the first three months increased at a 12-per-cent rate to $80.2 billion, although it noted the earnings were inflated by the effects of inflation.

Prime rate soars to record 11½ pct.

NEW YORK (AP) — The prime lending rate, which has been increasing weekly over the past three months, edged upward Friday as major banks posted an 11½ per cent record high.

The latest increase in the key rate, the interest banks charge their best and biggest corporate customers, sent more tremors through a financial community already worried about inflation, the availability of money, and possible bankruptcies.

Leading the increase from 11¼ per cent Friday was New York's First National City Bank, whose prime is set according to a formula based on the average cost of money in the short-term market. Citibank, the country's second largest commercial bank, was quickly followed by a host of other New York banks, including Chase Manhattan, third biggest, Chemical Bank, sixth and Bankers Trust, seventh.

Shortly thereafter the Bank of America, the nation's largest, adopted the 11½ per cent rate, as did other banks across the country.

Inflation impact on air cost told

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation has increased the cost of providing scheduled air transportation by 43 per cent in the past six years and now is the most important factor in the economics of the industry, the Air Transport Association said Friday.

ATA, the trade organization of the scheduled airlines, made the comment in presenting its annual industry report to the Civil Aeronautics Board.

PAST reports have included a forecast for the coming year but the association declined to submit such a projection this year. It said uncertain fuel prices made predictions impossible. Instead, ATA concentrated on presenting a study of costs and productivity by the scheduled carriers from 1967 through 1973.

Airline asks merger of Atlantic routes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pan American World Airways asked its major U.S. competitor Friday if it would be willing to merge operations and pool all revenue on the North Atlantic routes both airlines currently serve.

The proposal to Trans World Airlines came on the second day of talks between the two carriers on how they can beat the rising cost of jet fuel and restore profitability to their international operations.

THE Civil Aeronautics Board earlier approved the talks. The Department of Justice opposes the discussions but the Department of Transportation has suggested pooling of revenues and operations may be the best way to keep the two carriers from going bankrupt or from requiring huge government subsidies.

The proposal advanced by Pan Am would affect air service between eight U.S. cities and five European communities.

ATA said industry labor costs during that period jumped 69 per cent, from an average salary of $9,730 to $16,464. Interest rates jumped nearly 100 per cent, it said, and the unit cost of facilities, including rentals and landing fees, increased by more than 50 per cent.

FUEL costs, ATA said, jumped from 10.4 cents to 12.6 cents in the six years, but it added that the average cost of jet fuel after nearly five months of 1974 is 22 cents per gallon.

ATA Chairman Stuart G. Tipton told the CAB the rate of inflation was so high that the airlines were afraid efforts to keep pace by increasing the cost of air fares would retard the growth of air traffic. He said both the CAB and the airlines had to find ways to increase productivity and to dampen inflation.

U.S. cities affected would be Baltimore-Washington, Boston, Detroit, Chicago, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia and San Francisco.

European cities affected would be London, Paris, Rome, Frankfurt and Lisbon.

THE 13 cities are the only points on the two continents that both Pan Am and TWA serve. Under Pan Am's proposal, the two airlines would decide jointly how many flights they would offer on each route and one carrier might be assigned all flights between two points if that route was not profitable enough to support both airlines.

This would boost the number of passengers per plane, thus increasing the profitability of both airlines. It also would free equipment now being used on some of these routes for possible use on routes not now served by either carrier, Pan Am said.

Economy dips faster than forecast toward recession

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The economy slid faster toward a possible recession in the first three months of the year than government economists first thought and inflation also increased in the same period, the Commerce Department said Friday.

New figures showed that economic output actually fell at a 6.3 per cent annual rate between January and March rather than at the 5.8 per cent pace estimated last month in a preliminary report on the Gross National Product (GNP).

THE STEEPER plunge in the growth rate could make it marginally more difficult for the economy to reverse its downward momentum in the current quarter and thus avert a technical recession—defined as two consecutive quarters of negative economic growth.

The same revised GNP report said inflation soared at an 11.5 per cent rate, even faster than the unusually heavy 10.8 per cent rate estimated last month.

It was the fastest three-month rise in prices since a 13 per cent jump in the first quarter of 1951. The GNP dropoff, chiefly due to slumping automobile sales and a depressed housing industry, was the biggest since the first quarter of 1950.

In a separate report, the Commerce Department said before-tax corporate profits rose $12.7 billion, or 12 per cent, in the first quarter after falling $1.6 billion, or 1.3 per cent, in the previous three months.

HOWEVER, the increase was entirely due to inventory profits—the increased value of goods in stock between the time of purchase and their subsequent resale—and was thus largely illusory. Rapidly rising wholesale prices in recent months accounted for the higher inventory value.

The latest figures give the picture of a relatively robust economy badly victimized by inflation. The administration still is forecasting a healthy upturn in the second half of 1974, once industry and consumers adjust to the effects of the energy shortage.

But instability in Western Europe, an important market for U.S. exports, and uncertainty over what the oil producing countries planned to do with their enormous monetary surpluses, have caused some economists to hedge their bets concerning an upturn by midsummer.

GM and Chrysler facing big recall

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler and General Motors Friday announced recall campaigns involving almost 20,000 vehicles, including 3,700 GMC motor homes which may have defects that could cause the accelerator to stick or a wheel to fall off.

Both GM and Chrysler said there have been no accidents or injuries as a result of the defects on the cars, light trucks and motor homes. Needed corrections will be made at no cost to owners.

BESIDES the motor homes, the recall campaigns involve 2,800 1974-model light-duty GMC trucks, 3,600 current-model Chevrolet Lagunas, 6,880 1974-model Imperial and Chrysler New Yorker Brougham, two-door models and 1,537 1974-model Plymouth Valiants, Plymouth Satellites, Dodge Darts, Dodge Coronets and Dodge Chargers equipped with automatic transmissions.

A GM spokesman said the accelerator linkage and rear wheel bearings will be replaced on the 1973 and 1974 GMC motor homes.

There have been some instances of the accelerator cable freezing due to water getting into the linkage during the winter. Failure of the rear wheel bearing could ultimately result in separation of the rear tandem wheel from the vehicle.

GM also is recalling 3,690 current-model

Chevrolet Lagunas which have a hood latching plate out of position which could affect the operation of the hood latch secondary catch.

ON 2,800 1974-model light-duty trucks, some 500 may have defective bolts installed on upper control arms.

Alioto 'gathers Moss'

Brown 'up the creek' on dam issue

By BILL STALL
AP Political Writer

The Jerry Brown campaign literally was up the creek Friday. The Joe Alioto campaign was figuratively gathering Moss.

For Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., the campaign trail was a splashy rocky road — a raft trip down the wild Stanislaus River.

The Moss gathered by San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto was the endorsement of Congressman John Moss, Democrat from Sacramento.

Both Alioto and Brown are candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor in the June 4 primary.

Brown was touring the Mother Lode country of the Sierra foothills and scheduled the raft trip to express his opposition to the scope of the controversial New Melones Dam.

"That big dam that the Corps of Engineers is proposing, I don't think is needed," Brown said at the community college in the historic gold rush town of Columbia during the morning.

Brown did not oppose the idea of a dam entirely, but said it should not be as big as that now planned by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Another leading Democratic candidate, Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, was talking about higher education in Los Angeles.

The cost of going to college is too high, Moretti said.

"We are at the point where working, taxpaying people who helped build and maintain our public institutions can no longer afford to have their children attend," he said.

"That's due in part to the fact that in the Reagan era the state actually diminished its support in real dollars per student," he said.

Moss announced his endorsement of Alioto in a press statement released in Sacramento.

He said Alioto is "clearly better equipped to govern the state than any other person in either political party."

Another Democratic candidate for governor received a commendation from the Woodland Daily Democrat for cutting short a speech when other portions of the program ran late.

"What a shame that today's electorate substitutes charisma for character and ballyhoo for breeding. (William Matson) Roth is probably ready to be governor of California; will California ever be ready for Roth as its governor?" the Democrat editorial said.

On the Republican side, Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke stepped up his campaign, overshadowed so far by the federal perjury indictment against him. He toured a series of shopping centers in Southern California Friday.

Reinecke's chances for the Republican nomination rest largely on the decision of a federal court judge, due on Monday, whether to dismiss the charges which Reinecke calls "flimsy, transparent" and politically motivated.

The current GOP frontrunner, in the opinion polls, Controller Houston I. Flournoy, was taking a three-day break from campaigning before heading into the final two weeks before the balloting.

California poll

'Voters don't know who's running'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Most state voters don't even know who's running in the Democratic primary for state attorney general and the Republican primary for the U.S. Senate, the California Poll said Friday.

Pollster Mervin D. Field said that Democrats Vincent Bugliosi and William Norris both are preferred by 24 per cent of the voters sampled in the attorney general primary. Another 1 per cent favored other candidates, leaving 51 per cent undecided.

In the Republican primary for the U.S. Senate seat held by Democrat Alan Cranston, State Sen. H.L. Richardson drew support from 31 per cent of those polled. That was well ahead of his closest rival, former state Health and Welfare Director Earl Brian, with 5 per cent. Other hopefuls drew 7 per cent of Republican voters, leaving 57 per cent undecided.

Fewer than one voter in 10 could even name any of the candidates when simply asked who they preferred, Field said.

Field's poll was based on interviews of 899 persons between May 1 and May 7. Of the total, 517 were Democrats, 326 Republicans and 56 listed as other. The survey questions were asked of 489 Southern Californians and 410 persons in the north.

Gov. Reagan opposes Prop. 9

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Gov. Reagan announced Friday he is opposed to Proposition 9, the political reform initiative on the June 4 ballot.

Reagan's announcement said he supported all eight other propositions on the ballot, including Proposition 5, which would allow diversion of gasoline tax money to transit system construction on a local-option basis.

A spokeswoman in Reagan's office said the Republican governor favored enactment of his own political reform package now pending in the Legislature.

Proposition 9 would set spending limits on statewide campaigns; bar political contributions by lobbyists; order incumbents to spend 10 per cent less on campaigns than their challengers; require reporting of all donations of $50 or more and set up a campaign practices commission with a $1 million annual budget to enforce observance of campaign law.

Chief backer of Proposition 9 is Common Cause, the so-called "people's lobby." The California Federation of Labor, AFL-CIO, is spearheading opposition.

$628,900 worth of tax-paid Charges in mail said sent by assemblymen kidnap case dismissed

SACRAMENTO (AP)—California Common Cause said Friday that state assemblymen running in the June primary have sent out mailings to constituents costing the taxpayers $628,900.

Common Cause, which bills itself as a "citizens lobby," said a study shows the legislators sent out more than 5.6 million newsletters paid for by the state so far this year.

Last month alone, spokesman Mike Walsh said, 3.9 million pieces of mail were sent out by assemblymen to their constituents. Only four of the 80 members of the Legislature's lower house have not mailed any newsletters this year.

"In California, 90 per cent of our legislators are re-elected in noncompetitive races and one of the reasons their races are non-competitive is this public campaign subsidy in the form of legislative newsletters," said Harold Willens, chairman of the California Coalition for Prop. 9.

"This is another blatant abuse of legislative privilege which Prop. 9 will end when it is approved by the voters June 4," he added.

Common Cause has been a major supporter of Prop. 9, the political reform initiative on the June 4 primary.

The group said the Senate Rules Committee has refused to release any information on the number of free mailings by state senators as the Assembly Rules Committee did.

The study listed Assemblyman Henry Waxman, D-Los Angeles, as having sent out the largest free mailings, 202,121 pieces. Waxman is running for Congress in the June primary.

Other large mailings were made by Assemblyman Walter Karabian, D-Monterey Park, 137,916 pieces; Assemblyman Mike Antonovich, R-Los Angeles, 180,300; Assemblyman Robert Badham, R-Newport Beach, 130,634; and Assemblyman Don MacGillivray, R-Santa Barbara, 173,974.

OAKLAND (AP)—Charges were dismissed Friday against Anthony Pettaway in the kidnapping and slaying of Piedmont socialist Ellen Keels Harrison and her son.

Pettaway, 22, had been charged along with Leroy Breckenridge, 26, who was convicted on two counts of first degree murder Wednesday in Alameda County Superior Court.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Gary Yancey told the court his office was dropping charges against Pettaway because of insufficient evidence. Judge Thomas McBridge dismissed the charges and remanded Pettaway back to Lompoc Prison where he is serving a term.

Breckenridge's ex-girlfriend testified during his trial that both he and Pettaway were at the entrance to the Richmond Golf and Country Club on Feb. 1, 1973, when Mrs. Harrison and her son, Warren Merrill, were shot to death in their car.

CHP plans to vote on strike over pay

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Members of the California Highway Patrolmen's Association will vote on whether to strike for legislation that would grant a pay raise, the organization announced Friday.

Ralph Schiavone, executive manager of the association, said the vote of the 6,300-member group was "imminent" but declined to disclose when it actually would be taken.

ABOUT 240 off-duty patrolmen and their wives plan to picket CHP headquarters in Los Angeles on Monday, he said, and about that many will do likewise in San Francisco.

Schiavone said the issue revolves around legislation by Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, that would require the state Personnel Board to compute pay raises for patrolmen based on what police receive in Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego and Oakland.

The personnel Board traditionally had computed patrol pay increases by basing them on earnings of officers in those major cities, he said, but "arbitrarily" expanded the list to include officers in about 20 cities, many of them small.

He noted the personnel board had recommended a 4.5 per cent increase for patrolmen whose current average monthly salary is about $1,666.

He said based on the current method of computing salaries, "it ends up the CHP will be some 15 per cent behind prevailing average pay of officers in the five largest jurisdictions."

THE BILL is scheduled for its first hearing on Tuesday. Schiavone said the association members, whom he said include virtually all the patrol's uniformed officers, would be asked whether they would strike if the measure was not signed into law.

Schiavone said patrolmen now are 7 per cent behind the salaries of police officers in the five biggest local jurisdictions. He said local officers are expected to receive at least an average 8 per cent pay raise July 1.

"The association is prepared to accept a lower percentage now, providing that the administration accepts AB3801 to cure the problem in the future," he said.

Israel presses revenge raids for second day

United Press International

Israeli air and ground forces attacked Arab guerrilla bases in Lebanon Friday in the second day of retaliation for the Maalot massacre. Both Israel and Syria reported heavy artillery and tank gun duels in the 67th day of fighting on the Golan Heights.

Syria said one Israeli plane was shot down in flames in a dogfight over Lebanon with Syrian planes but Israel denied there was any air battle and said all of its planes returned safely to base.

ISRAEL said its planes hit an Al Fatah guerrilla command post near the Lebanese village of Aita el Fahar, two buildings in the village of Bekafa and an ammunition storage area of El Vait.

Lebanese Ambassador Edouard Ghorra protested Israeli air attacks to the U.N. Security Council, calling them "an hysterical stampede, following the tragic developments of Maalot." He did not call for a council meeting.

Lebanon said formations of Israeli jetfighters attacked seven areas in the south for 10 minutes starting at 1:45 p.m. killing one woman and destroying a "cultural association" building.

A defense ministry communique said four Israeli planes broke the sound-barrier over Beirut during the afternoon, sending citizens racing for cover, but were driven off by anti-aircraft fire. Early in the day, Beirut said the Lebanese air force was scrambled when Israeli planes entered Lebanese air space but make no contact with the intruders.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli armed forces chief of staff Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur, commenting on the air attacks, said he could not rule out the possibility that Israel was out to make southern Lebanon "unliveable," a word used two months ago by Defense Minister Moshe Dayan.

SECRETARY of State Henry A. Kissinger flew back to Jerusalem from Damascus early in the day for more talks in his efforts to help work out a cease-fire and military disengagement between Israeli and Syrian forces on the Golan Heights front. An American spokesman said Kissinger had proposed "American ideas" to both sides on a compromise to break the deadlock.

The Israeli air strikes brought sharp criticism from Kissinger who had also denounced the Arab guerrilla attack on Maalot. Egypt warned Israel that there could be grave consequences from the air raids and Egyptian officials spoke of a resumption of the war.

MANY Palestinian Arab guerrilla bases and refugee camps are concentrated in the southern part of Lebanon and were among the targets Thursday of the heaviest Israeli air strikes since last October's war.

Lebanese government reports Friday put the toll Thursday at 48 killed, 20 missing and 174 wounded. A communique said 143 houses and scores of shacks destroyed.

The Arab guerrilla attack in Maalot Wednesday took 30 lives, mostly teenage Israeli high school students, and injured another 88 persons. The dead included the three guerrillas, whom Israel said infiltrated from Lebanon.

Lebanese authorities said the Friday air attacks were on a localized scale not comparable with Thursday's widespread raids. The targets included villages in the western foothills of Mount Hermon which Israeli planes have attacked repeatedly over the past three weeks.

Israel made no mention of casualties in the hit-and-run raid by a commando unit one mile across the Lebanese border from the farm community at Dan during which they blew up what was identified as a guerrilla headquarters. It said the house was empty when the soldiers got there.

A LEBANESE communique said Lebanese troops drove off an Israeli foot patrol that crossed 300 yards into Lebanon near the southern border village of Kfar Kela during the night. Israel said its raiding force went in and out without being challenged.

Withholding comment on the civilian casualties caused by the air raids Thursday, the Tel Aviv command said its bombers Friday spent 30 minutes raiding "terrorist targets" in southern and southeast Lebanon.

Even as attention was focused on the Lebanese front, the Israeli military command said its men exchanged artillery and tank fire with Syrian units in the salient captured last October and around strategic Mount Hermon. Two Israeli soldiers were wounded in the exchanges, the command said.

DAMASCUS also reported "fierce" fighting with artillery, tanks and anti-armor weapons on Mount Hermon and all along the 40-mile Golan Heights front continued through the day.

In Beirut, Lebanese President Suleiman Franjeh told a restricted cabinet meeting called to discuss a possible Lebanese complaint to the U.N. Security Council that Thursday's attacks "remind us of Nazism."

Kidnap victim helps team win

TOM MATTHEWS Rest Interrupted

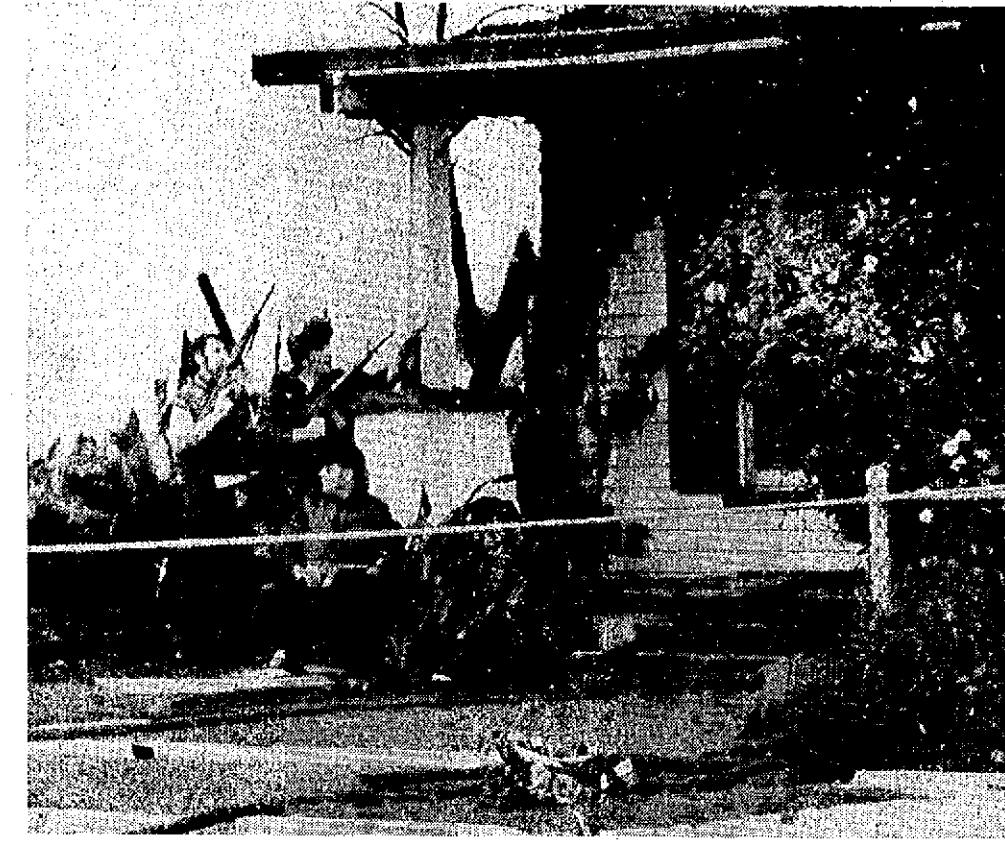

By LARRY LYNCH Staff Writer

For Tom Matthews, 18, of Lynwood, one of the irritating things about getting kidnaped was that it interfered with resting up for the championship baseball game he had to play Friday afternoon.

Matthews was in custody of the S.L.A. from 7 p.m. Thursday, when he was abducted near his home, until about 6 a.m. Friday.

Most of that time he spent lying in the rear of his own van, covered with a blanket, listening to conversation about sawing off a hand, making a rendezvous, and finding another getaway car.

Finally, when his kid-

5 DIE IN SLA SHOOTOUT

Metropolitan Division police officers and members of the Special Weapons and Tactics (SWAT) teams then opened fire with shotguns, carbines and AR-15 automatic rifles, police said.

"It was a war. There was no other way to describe it," Hagan said.

Several tear gas canisters were fired into the house, and firemen speculated it was one of these canisters which started the fire.

Police had difficulty telling how long the firing from within the building continued, because of the thick pall of smoke and tear gas which hung over the neighborhood. Rounds of ammunition set off by flames in the house sent one report after another ringing through the neighborhood.

Earlier in the day, police had raided a house in another area, southeast of the Pepperdine University campus, where they thought SLA members might be staying.

Instead, the dawn raid netted only signs that occupants had fled hurriedly.

A few minutes later, Lynwood police disclosed that a Lynwood youth, Tom Matthews, 18, had been kidnaped when persons believed to be SLA members commandeered his van.

He was released later in the Hollywood Hills, police said.

The Friday evening gun battle in South Los Angeles produced a glut of speculation and misinformation.

Facts about the battle were as hard to see as the smoky neighborhood's skyline, as one rumor after another went from mouth to mouth and over radio and television.

An early report said a police officer had been shot in the leg. Later it was said he had hurt his leg when he fell off a rooftop. Still later in the evening Hagan said no policemen had been injured.

Bombs were definitely reported to be inside the house, but a search by the police bomb squad turned up negative.

Through it all, hundreds of curious spectators were held back by a small army of police.

WATERGATE

going to lose my marriage."

Talmadge then asked, "It had nothing whatever to do with the Watergate matter?"

Mitchell answered, "None whatsoever."

According to the Judiciary Committee's transcript, the portion of the tape that the committee heard begins with Haldeman, former White House chief of staff, saying, "Well, there maybe is another facet. The longer you wait the more risk each hour brings. You run the risk of more stuff valid or invalid surfacing on the Watergate caper-type of thing."

Nixon agreed, saying, "Yes, that's the other thing, if something does come out, but we won't—we hope nothing will. It may not. But there is always the risk."

Then Nixon made it apparent that the matter under discussion was Mitchell's resignation, and the President told Mitchell the "story" that would be used to announce the resignation.

"Well, I'd cut the loss fast," the President said. "I'd cut it fast. If we're going to do it, I'd cut it fast." Nixon went on to say:

"I think the story is, you're positive rather than negative, because as I said as I was preparing to answer for this press conference, I just wrote it out, as I usually do, one way—terribly sensitive (unintelligible). A hell of a lot of people will like that answer. They would. And it'd make anybody else who asked any question on it look like a selfish son of a bitch which thoroughly intended them to look like."

Nixon told Mitchell that "otherwise" the resignation "will be tied right to Watergate," and he assured Mitchell that the matter would be handled "in a way that Martha's not hurt."

Mitchell replied, "Yeah, okay."

William G. Hundley, Mitchell's attorney, was asked Friday about the discrepancy between the transcript and Mitchell's testimony. The lawyer responded, "We'll just stand on our sworn testimony."

Boy hit, killed by truck after being warned

MONTEBELLO (UPI) — James Bart, 7, was struck and killed by a garbage truck Friday following warnings by the truck driver to stay away from the vehicle, police said.

Police said the boy had been playing near the truck and had been warned several times by the driver to leave. The driver told police that minutes later he heard the truck strike something and found the boy under its wheels. The boy was pronounced dead at Beverly Hospital. The driver was not held.

Man killed as steel shafts fall

A 47-year-old Fullerton man was killed Friday when several 1,200-pound steel shafts he was unloading rolled off his truck, killing him instantly, the Orange County coroner's office reported.

Jose Gutierrez of 4112 West Ave., a truck driver for the Pickens Hydraulic Cylinder Co., was unloading seven of the 12-foot-long shafts at the company site, 1399 N. Miller St., Anaheim.

Space weather eye watched

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The National Aviation and Space Administration said it used a remote controlled rocket blast Friday to correct the course of an errant new weather satellite, but results will not be known until this morning. The spacecraft was launched by a three-stage rocket Friday morning into an elliptical earth orbit to provide the first around-the-clock storm watcher for the United States.

It was programed to circuit about 22,000 miles but faltered at 20,000 miles and corrective measures had to be taken.

"It didn't quite get into proper orbit" a NASA spokesman said.

A "kicker motor" was fired at 8:06 p.m. to correct the course.

"ALL WE know for sure is that the firing took place at the right time and for the proper duration," the spokesman said. "We will not definitely know the results of this until about 8 a.m."

"But if that went as planned then most of the problem will have been corrected and the spacecraft will be able to perform the experiment for which it was designed." The Synchronous Meteorological Satellite, representing a $23.6 million investment, was designed to soar into a stationary orbit above the Atlantic Ocean to keep a constant lookout for hurricane and tornado development and other weather disturbances. It also is to have a key role in an international tropical weather monitoring project starting June 15.

Engineers at the satellite control center near Washington, D.C., planned to try to make up the lost altitude with the early-evening firing of a control rocket aboard the craft. The aim is to push it to the 22,300-mile altitude where its orbital speed will match earth's rotation and keep it over one area.

The satellite is the first of a new generation of weather-watching spacecraft. Earlier weather satellites have gone into north-south polar orbits which gave them a fleeting view of each area on earth twice a day.

FROM a stationary vantage point, the SMS was equipped to take pictures of cloud cover every 30 minutes, day and night.

County OK seen for pay package

Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisors Tuesday are expected to approve a $60.7 million package of pay hikes and fringe benefits for some 58,660 employees, effective July 1.

Personnel Director Gordon Nesvig will recommend the salary increase based on agreements already ratified with 35 bargaining units covering 53,708 employees—with comparable pay hikes for a further 4,952 workers not covered by bargaining units.

Nesvig noted that he was not recommending increases for eight bargaining units covering 8,900 employees because negotiations with them still are at an impasse. He said he did not expect agreements with the eight units would be reached in time for consideration in the July 1 salary ordinance.

The eight outstanding units include peace officers, registered nurses, corrections officers, attorneys and public defender investigators.

City prosecutor Starr to retire

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

City Prosecutor James T. Starr, a member of the Long Beach prosecutor's office for 31 years and six times elected to head the office, announced Friday he will retire July 1.

Starr's current three-year term would expire in July, 1975. He said he decided to retire earlier after many hours of deliberation, and not without a deep sense of loss.

UNDER the city charter, the City Council has authority to appoint a city prosecutor to serve until the next municipal election, in 1975.

The 67-year-old Starr was born in Allen, Ill., but has been a resident of Long Beach since 1912. He attended the old Carroll Park Grammar School, and was graduated from Poly High in 1924. He received his bachelor's degree from UCLA in 1928 and his law degree from the USC Law School in 1931.

After being admitted to the California Bar in 1931, Starr went into private practice. In 1942, he was appointed a deputy city prosecutor. He served as city prosecutor, by City Council appointment, when the then City Prosecutor Ken Sutherland went into the Army, but relinquished the job on Sutherland's return.

On Jan. 1, 1956, Starr was appointed by the council as city prosecutor. He was elected to his first three-year term in 1957, and then was re-elected five consecutive times.

JAMES T. STARR

the current term starting in 1972.

HE WAS given the "Good Government Award" of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in 1967 for "outstanding service to the City of Long Beach."

Starr said one of the problems involved in his job has been the misunderstanding of the public as to its responsibilities. The city attorney's office handles only civil cases for the city. The city prosecutor's office handles criminal cases, but only misdemeanors. Felony cases are handled by the district attorney's office.

Since Joseph Busch has been district attorney, Starr said, his office has referred a growing number of misdemeanor cases to the Long Beach city prosecutor. The Penal Code provides, if a crime has dual punishment as a misdemeanor or felony, that the district attorney can refer prosecution to the city on a misdemeanor count.

DURING 1973, Starr said, Long Beach received 1,461 such referrals. For 1974, through May 15, the local office already has received 636 referrals, he said. A large majority are narcotic cases, he added.

Although many jurisdictions have reported great increases in crime, this appears to be true of major crimes and not of misdemeanors, Starr said. There have been more cases, but it seems to reflect the growth of the area, rather than added law-breaking, he said.

In addition to memberships in the Long Beach Bar Association and California Bar Association, Starr also has been active with the California Heights Methodist Church, Elks Club, Optimist Club, Long Beach Diner Club and Alamitos Bay Post of the American Legion. He has been active also with the YMCA, and served on the board of its camping branch.

Starr and his wife, Frances, live at 3966 Gardena Ave. They have a son, David, and two grandsons.

Drivers Ok as truck hits van, cars, shop

Two drivers Friday escaped with minor injuries when a huge truck-trailer operated by one them lost its brakes and touched off a crash scene at a Torrance intersection.

Injured were Carl Joseph Sviatek, driver of the truck-trailer, and Donald Lee Keeton, driver of a bakery van. Both were treated at Torrance Memorial Hospital and released.

A passenger in the truck-trailer, Ken Parrott, was not injured, police said.

Miraculously escaping involvement in the accident were dozens of cars and pedestrians in the truck-trailer's path.

Torrance police gave this account of the noon-time debacle:

Sviatek's suddenly brakeless rig went out of control while going downhill on Hawthorne Boulevard, a quarter-mile from Pacific Coast Highway. As the truck swerved, a five-ton tractor it was carrying on its trailer broke loose, became airborne and plunged 100 feet, crashing into a pole.

The hurtling tractor rammed Keeton's bakery van, sending it out of control and ricocheting across Hawthorne Boulevard where it smashed against an earth embankment, scattering its cargo of boxed crackers.

Meanwhile, the truck's swerving trailer clipped two parked cars and wiped out the front of an art furnishings shop at 24542 Hawthorne Blvd., where several women were working.

9 area residents in Grand Jury pool

Our L.A. Bureau

The names of nine Long Beach area residents were among 40 chosen in a random drawing Friday for possible service on the 1974-75 County Grand Jury.

The 40 names were drawn from a list of 212 nominees for the panel. Asst. Presiding Judge Robert A. Wenke of the Los Angeles Superior Court was in charge of the drawing in the County Courthouse while County Clerk Clarence Cabell made the selections by picking out numbers from a jury wheel. Each name on the list of nominees had been given a number beforehand.

From the 40 names the final 23 making up the grand jury panel will be selected at another drawing on June 5.

Long Beach area residents included in the 40 are: Harold Baum, 67, 3834 Lime Ave., Long Beach — retired businessman; Mrs. Jane Began, 43, 6234 Monica St., Long Beach — homemaker; Sam Feldman, 70, 2832 Chestnut Ave., Long Beach — retired merchant; Mrs. Virginia Muchmore, 48, 806 Santiago Ave., Long Beach — homemaker; Jesse Robinson, 60, 1702 N. Wilmington Ave., Compton — businessman.

Also William Rodgers, 71, 12134 E. 214th St., Hawaiian Gardens — retired meat market owner; Thomas Sanders, 65, 111 Glendora Ave., Long Beach — engineer; Mrs. Dorothy Sherrett, 49, 214 Van Karajan, San Pedro — homemaker; and Herman Waldman, 60, 10610 Sideview Drive, Downey — businessman.

The Veterans Administration is putting new emphasis on the quality of outpatient care in an attempt to prevent hospitalization or worsening of illness, a high-level VA official said in Long Beach Friday.

The VA's plans to aid the "walking sick" were described by Dr. Edgar A. Reed, who has been chief of outpatient services at Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital since 1971. Dr. Reed has just been promoted to deputy assistant chief medical director for ambulatory care and will be stationed at the VA's central office in Washington, D.C.

DR. EDGAR A. REED

lot of persons, Dr. Reed said.

IN HIS new assignment Dr. Reed will be responsible for advising the VA's chief medical director in regard to ambulatory care needs of veterans served by 213 VA facilities, including 171 hospitals, eight independent clinics, three regional office clinics and 31 satellite clinics (clinics affiliated with other VA hospitals).

Dr. Reed, who is a lawyer as well as a physician, said the VA plans to open six new clinics this year and six more the following year.

The "main thrust" now, he said, is to provide for the needs of many veterans who have illnesses that don't require hospitalization immediately. These are veterans who might require hospitalization if their illnesses are not properly managed at the present time.

The VA is attempting to change the image of the outpatient clinic of yesterday, which imparted an "unpalatable taste" to a "PEOPLE had to wait a long time and then didn't get their medical needs taken care of," he said of the outpatient clinic of the past.

Medical schools are partly to blame for the old image, he noted. Medical educators traditionally have tended to emphasize the hospitalized patient in teaching programs.

"This is tragic," said Dr. Reed.

It's tragic because in the private sector of medicine most of the patients are seen in doctor's offices—not hospitals, he explained.

Dr. Reed is well qualified for his new post in that the Long Beach VA Hospital has the largest ambulatory care center in the entire VA medical system. By the end of June, when the fiscal year concludes, the Long Beach VA will have chalked up 270,000 outpatient visits in a 12-month period, Dr. Reed said.

The new emphasis on ambulatory care can prevent hospitalization altogether in some instances and can delay it in many other cases, Dr. Reed said. The advantage is obvious. As Dr. Reed puts it: "I know I wouldn't want to go into a hospital if I didn't have to."

THERE are other advantages, he continues. Increasing ambulatory patient load sometimes can reduce the cost of diagnostic workups. An example is that laboratory tests can be performed on an outpatient basis, making it unnecessary for the patient to be admitted to a hospital.

New legislation passed late in 1973 by Congress now enables VA physicians to treat certain disorders without admitting the patient to the hospital, Dr. Reed said.

Prior to the new act, if a patient suffered, say, a Colles' fracture (a type of wrist fracture), hospitalization would be required. Now a VA physician can treat such a fracture on an outpatient basis.

OVERALL cost benefits are expected from the new policy. VA hospitalization costs about $85 a day, he said, but ambulatory cases cost $30 to $35 daily.

Dr. Reed is a Fellow of the American College of Legal Medicine and a member of the editorial board of the Journal of Legal Medicine. He has a broad range of medical interests and has lectured at medical meetings on aviation medicine, diabetes, heart disease, hormonal disorders and organ transplantation.

Dr. Reed is a graduate of Indiana University school of medicine, Indianapolis, and the John Marshall University school of law, Atlanta, Ga.

Standard will ask more drilling off Seal Beach

Standard Oil of California will seek permission from the regional coastal commission Monday to continue production of oil and gas from Island Esther, a man-made oil island 1½ miles off the Seal Beach coastline.

The company has applied for a claim of exemption from the Coastal Conservation Act of 1972 on grounds that it has a vested interest in its operations on the island.

Standard constructed the graded, rock-fill facility in 1964 after paying the state $4 million for drilling rights to Tidelands Lease Parcel 16-A, which lies in the rich Belmont Offshore Oil and Gas Field.

Since that date, the company has sunk 73 wells on the one-acre island, which is under jurisdiction of the State Lands Commission.

Last August, a minor, but spectacular spill from Esther coated a two-mile swath of sea as it floated toward the strand at Surfside. Coast Guardmen, who termed the ooze "completely minor," said only about 50 gallons of oil were spilled. They said the oil spread thinly over the ocean's surface as a 15-knot on-shore wind pushed it toward the coast.

Coastal commissioners are due to consider Standard's request near the beginning of their meeting, which is slated for 9 a.m. in the Long Beach Harbor Department's board room, 925 Harbor Plaza Drive.

Later in the day, they are scheduled to consider another request from Standard, which has also applied for permission to re-drill two existing oil wells and one water injection well in Long Beach, west of the Los Angeles County Flood Control

Channel between Seventh and 11th streets.

Other local items on the agenda include an application from the City of Long Beach for the construction of four settling basins to be located east of the Queen's Way Bridge; south of Ocean Boulevard and east of 54th Place; the entrance channel to Alamitos Bay and at southwest Marine Stadium adjacent to Marine Park.

Margaret W. Allison and Paul McClaughry have asked permission to construct a 5-story, 35-unit condominium at 201 Bayshore Ave., and Randy Blanchard has applied for a permit to construct a 4-unit apartment building at 201 Ravenna Drive.

San Pedro projects up for consideration include a request by Gonzalo Rangel for the construction of a 14-unit apartment building at 351 W. 9th St., and an application by Charles Middleton and Frank Walter to build eight townhouse units at 726 W. 34th St.

5 injured in chain reaction accident

Four persons and a driver were injured Friday in a chain-reaction accident in the parking lot of a Safeway store in Bellflower, Lakewood sheriff's deputies said.

Deputy Ray Sowers said an auto driven by Fred Netzhammer, 74, entered the south side of the lot, 16100 Bellflower Blvd., about 10:30 a.m., and struck pedestrian Fred Shrewsbury, 40.

The vehicle then hit a news stand in front of the market, bounced away and struck the rear of a parked Ford van containing Roy and Barbara Beckwith, both 23, and Randy Beckwith, 2½, Sowers said.

The crash pushed the van over a concrete island, against a tree and into another parked car, the deputy said.

Netzhammer, of 9646 Arkansas St., Bellflower; the Beckwiths, of 9630 Alondra Blvd., and Shrewsbury, of South Gate, were taken to Paramount General Hospital.

Deputies said Netzhammer and Shrewsbury suffered chest injuries, the little girl was bruised and cut in the mouth, the woman's right thumb was injured and Beckwith's left cheek was cut and he had a possible broken jaw.

6-year-old boy drowns in lake at El Dorado

A six-year-old Long Beach boy drowned in the lake at El Dorado Park East Friday after apparently wandering away from his family's campsite, authorities reported.

Steven F. Powell of 530 E. Pleasant St., Apt. 3, was apparently camping in the park with his family when he wandered off to the lake, said Paramedic Stan Steele of the Long Beach Fire Department.

A pumper and rescue squad from the fire department sped to the park at approximately 8 p.m. Two men were attempting to revive the boy who had been in the water about 20 minutes, Steele said. Steven was rushed to Community Hospital where further resuscitation efforts also failed.

Armed forces parade today

America's biggest Armed Forces Day Parade will be held in Torrance today, beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Grand marshal is the chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., who performed the same role in 1967.

The 15th annual parade, which is sponsored by the city and the area chamber of commerce, starts at Madrid Avenue and Torrance Boulevard. One hundred units will participate, and a crowd of up to 50,000 is expected.

All military services will be represented, and the marchers will include high school and college ROTC units, high school bands and drill teams.

The only other Armed Forces Day activity in the Southland today is an open house at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Station to serve as auto repair school

Operation of an auto repair business and school for mechanics in a former service station building at 3901 Pacific Ave. has been approved by the Long Beach Planning Commission.

The application was made by the owner, Atlantic Richfield Co., which proposes to lease the property to Inner City Ministries. One instructor will teach about six students on a 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. schedule, commissioners were told.

The property is in both a C-2 commercial and R-2 residential zone.

Commissioners heard a complaint from the city's Department of Building and Safety that Inner City Ministries has been using the station for auto repair in violation of the zoning ordinance and also that large trucks have been stored illegally on the property.

"An order to comply and then a violation notice was served on the occupants, who have made no attempt to comply," the Building Department report said.

A spokesman for Atlantic Richfield said, however, the problem has been worked out and assured the commission that there will be no further violations.

Opposition was voiced by several nearby property owners, who claimed the abandoned service station has been "an eyesore."

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Mondo grass — ophiopogon japonica — is an exceptionally good groundcover for under trees, where blade grass or dichondra lawn grows thin or dies out, or continues to die out after each reseeding.

The sturdy blade grass-like leaves, which are about eight inches long, grow closely together forming clumps of lawn-like groundcover. (It is not recommended for mowing). Plants send out stolons which are underground stems that sprout forth more leaves. The clumps grow larger and finally all grow together to form a tight groundcover. The sturdy roots withstand most tree-root invasion. If and when they bloom the short clusters of flowers are a light lilac color.

THE small plants are available in flats and possibly in pony packs. They are thin looking, each rooted clump having only three or four leaves. They're small! The soil must be watered well a day or two in advance of planting. Watered well means soak down at least five to six inches.

The soil may be prepared one of two ways. Gardener should put a two-inch layer of organic material such as pre-moistened peat moss, leaf mold, fine ground bark, or an organic planter mix on top of the ground, then dig it into the soil at least four to six inches. Water well. Several days later rake over the soil to level it. The plants should be spaced four to five inches apart when set out.

Another method is to briskly and firmly scratch the soil with a rake, then dig the holes. Several inches larger than the root balls. The organic material is mixed into each plant hole. The soil dug out for the holes also is mixed with half of the organic material, and plants are set out.

A top dressing of quality grade, weed-free steer manure or an organic spread mulch of one sack per each 200 square feet should be evenly applied over the newly planted area, then carefully watered down and kept moist.

A MONTH or so later gardener may begin a liquid fertilizer feeding program doing it at month to six week intervals well on into the fall season. Use three-fourths less of the liquid fertilizer mixed with water than is recommended on the label. The very small amount applied at those intervals feeds, enriches and stimulates the groundcover to grow faster than normal yet doesn't burn the plants.

A week or so later gardener can begin to lightly rake the fallen leaves off the groundcover without damaging the plants at all ... that is if he or she LIGHTLY rakes off the leaves!

Lawns need a periodic feeding ... at least once every three months. Some gardeners feed their lawns every six weeks but at half-strength fertilizer amount. Turf fertilizer with insecticide added helps young blade lawns and dichondra avoid invasion of lawn moth worms (blade lawn) and cutworms (dichondra lawn). The insecticide attacks five other kinds of lawn soil pests, too.

LAWNS fed at those intervals grow thicker, and by being mowed higher throughout the summer they tend to discourage weeds from overwhelming them.

Jobs for gardeners

Portulaca — moss rose — is an annual groundcover that grows about six inches off the ground. It blossoms throughout the summer in red, orange and yellow shades. Sow it into bare patches of the backyards, or even in rose beds, it keeps the soil cooler and looser because of annual plant roots, and actually retains moisture longer. The fine seed should be mixed in a bucket of sand — though not from a beach because of the possible high salt alkali content — or a bucket of quality grade weed-free steer manure. After mixing the seeds either way, scatter it where needed. The mix helps to separate the seeds thereby avoiding erratic patches of plants.

Faded blooming bulbs should be carefully dug up and placed in a shady area. The dry foliage should be cleaned off, also the bulbs, then put in a cool, shaded area of a tool shed or garage and stored till fall.

ORCHARDS WIPED OUT

SAN JOSE — Santa Clara County's once fruitful orchards will be totally paved over with houses in five years, Agricultural Commissioner Chet Howe said Friday.

Howe said the county only has 20,000 acres of commercial orchards left — and they are being destroyed at a rate of 4,000 acres per year to build new houses.

Some orchards will remain in existence in 1979, Howe said, but as far as being a viable economic force they will be out of business.

Before the building boom of the 1960s, Santa Clara County produced thousands of tons of prunes, cherries and other fruits and was known as the "Valley of Hearts Delight."

MONGO GRASS . . . for growing under trees

There are turf fertilizers that have not only the insecticide added but also herbicides that work on the weeds as the fertilizer feeds the lawn. There are two kinds of herbicides, the pre-emerge — which sterilizes and inhibits the weeds seeds so they won't sprout and grow, and the post-emerge herbicides, which attack the weeds after they have sprouted and are growing.

The tower greenhouse concept

New York Times Service VIENNA — It is one thing to produce a bumper crop of tomatoes and green peppers on a farm. It's quite another to grow these vegetables and others without farm machinery, chemical fertilizers or even soil — and produce more at substantially less cost.

For the past year, a wide variety of garden vegetables — including cucumbers, lettuce, and eggplants — have been artificially grown on the outskirts of Vienna in vertical, tower greenhouses. Instead of soil, the vegetables are raised in synthetic hoses attached to conveyor belts which move like giant ferris wheels, exposing the growing plants to optimum sunlight and dipping them in a nutrient solution that contains all the elements for normal growth.

AUSTRIAN consumers are discovering it's difficult to distinguish these products from the farm-grown variety.

The greenhouses, developed by agronomist Othmar Ruthner, represent an entirely new approach to food production that some experts believe could help solve the serious shortages of food in many parts of the world.

They are used on an experimental basis in at least a dozen countries, including Japan, Canada, West Germany, Norway, Poland, and the Soviet Union. Two international agencies — the United Nations and the Paris-based Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development — recently sponsored conferences on the tower greenhouse concept.

The main attraction that tower greenhouses have is that they can produce a continuous supply of food throughout the year, regardless of climate. Given the right amount of carbon dioxide, artificial sunlight and nutrients, vegetables or even wheat and soybeans could be grown in greenhouses at the North Pole, the Sahara, or beneath the ocean surface in a submarine.

BUT as a practical matter the most attractive locations for tower greenhouses are in big cities, where the cost of shipping fresh vegetables from farms in outlying rural areas has helped push food prices to all-time highs. Tower greenhouses can be situated in areas where people live and work, virtually eliminating shipment and distribution costs. Other greenhouses could be located adjacent to canneries.

Here in Vienna, vegetables produced on an experimental basis by a firm Ruthner heads have been sold for the past year at local markets. From all evidence, there are no differences in taste between farm-grown green peppers and tomatoes and those produced artificially in a tower greenhouse.

NEXT month Ruthner Industries Inc. plans to begin fullscale production of green peppers in competition with farmers. The firm's goal is to grow 10, 000 to 15,000 green peppers a week from a $220,000 greenhouse which will have a conveyor-belt system run by a 1-horsepower motor. Because of automation, labor costs in the greenhouse operation are expected to be substantially less than those on a farm.

Proponents of tower greenhouses point out that the system has the added advantage of requiring neither chemical insecticides nor fertilizers, and that the vegetables grown in such a hydroponic system are likely to be of better quality than those produced on a farm.

In addition to vegetables, the tower greenhouses are also being used by a number of countries for producing flowers and medical drugs.

Vegetable gardens take a back seat

WAUWATOSA, Wis. — Gardens, says a suburban alderman, are all right in their place. And that place is not in the front yards of a community that prides itself as a "city of homes."

After three months, Alderman William Stach's battle against a front yard vegetable garden planted by a woman who said she wanted to raise food for her five children is over. The Common Council of this residential community near Milwaukee recently adopted an ordinance prohibiting produce gardens in front yards. The ordinance, subjects violators to fines between $10 and $200.

STACH said the ordinance stemmed from complaints about Mrs. John Murphy. Mrs. Murphy dug up her front lawn and put in a garden because her back yard was too shady.

"If you want a garden, you've got room in your rear yard," Stach said. "If you don't have room and are of that nature that you have to have a garden then I think the thing to do is move and not jeopardize the value of all the homes in the neighborhood."

"I've got no qualms about a garden — I've got one myself," he added, "but there's a place for everything."

His idea of a proper front yard in Wauwatosa, Stach said, "is a nice front lawn, a few shrubs and a few flowers — something you can be proud of."

Alderman George Mathes, who himself had a lettuce border on a front yard flower garden, opposed the ban. He also said he sympathized with Mrs. Murphy because his own backyard was too shady.

MRS. Murphy, 36, said she wants to fight the ordinance if she gets enough support and can find the time. She is separated from her husband and has just started pre-medical studies at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

"The issue is more individual rights than the garden," she said.

The ordinance contains a provision for appeal to a citizen's board, but Mrs. Murphy held little hope for success there.

"I'd like to keep the garden," she said. "But if I can't I'll probably plant flowers. I'd like to see them try to put up an ordinance to stop that."

Briefly...

That rift, Billy and Sun Devil, calm on abortion

By LES RODNEY

Back from an involuntary absence, and once again thanks to interim religion editor Mark Clutter for his energetic and interesting pages. Mark will be taking over this "beat" when yours truly calls it a journalistic career later this year.

FAINT SIGNS of a will to compromise and avoid schism have appeared in the deeply divided Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. But still faint.

The immediate crucial issue is placement in the ministry of those graduating students who followed the majority of the Concordia Seminary faculty into "Seminex," the seminary-in-exile.

A Synod commission originally ruled that Seminex grads could not be ordained in the 2.8-million member denomination, this undoubtedly reflecting the position of conservative President J. A. O. Preus.

When it became apparent that this inflexible stand was the surest recipe for hardening the existing divisions, startling some conservatives as well as the "moderates," the faculty at Concordia last week announced a compromise designed to bring the Seminex grads into the Synod ministry. They would be interviewed by a Concordia faculty committee to determine if they are "qualified," and would have to take two summer school courses to earn a regular Concordia diploma.

This compromise was partially forced by the flat statements of a number of district presidents that they would place Seminex grads in their churches, no matter what.

Whether the compromise proposal will be acceptable to the Seminex students remains a question. There is considerable sentiment on the so-called moderate side against treating the Seminex grads any different from the regular Concordia grads, and they liken an appearance before a Concordia faculty committee to a "loyalty oath" which they feel is alien to Lutheranism.

Some sense of the formidable nature of the division can be seen in a communication by 23 former district presidents, including immediate past president of the Synod Dr. Oliver R. Harms, urging the placement of Seminex grads "without imposing upon them requirements beyond their recommendation by the Seminex faculty."

The 23 pointed out "in all brotherliness...that 40 Seminex professors were officially commended by the St. Louis Seminary Board of Control a year ago." They added that they are concerned with "proper procedures" but that in this case "to follow proper procedures you must act improperly. We call upon you to follow...courageous saints like the Twelve Apostles and Martin Luther," and noted that "today we have a completely unprecedented situation in our beloved Synod."

They can say that again.

IN THIS YEAR of the Exorcist and revived devil consciousness, it was merely coincidence that Billy Graham's most recent crusade, in Arizona, was held in Sun Devil Stadium. That's the nickname of the sports teams of Arizona State University.

The doughty evangelist, who survives all kinds of criticism including being a "White House preacher" and moves from success to success, drew a whopping average of 30,000 persons nightly during the eight-day crusade. Those who responded to his invitation to step forward and accept Christ averaged 1,200 per night. Hundreds of Indian Chris-

Last week Bishop James S. Rausch, general secretary of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, said that the meeting did not arrive at any consensus on the subject and that none was expected. "What is significant, however, is the willingness on both sides to discuss their respective points of view candidly and charitably."

A DECISION by the Roman Catholic Church to keep differences on the emotional issue of abortion from wrecking ecumenical relations and action on common concerns can be deduced from a recent sequence of events.

In February the General Board of the American Baptist Church adopted a resolution sharply critical of Catholic support of a constitutional amendment to reverse the Supreme Court's 1973 abortion decisions.

Early this month a meeting was held between top Catholic and American Baptist leaders.

What is being said here is that Christians can work together on many things without necessarily sacrificing their own distinctives and principles.

Rev. Chaney is one of son's fans

By LES RODNEY

As the folks were leaving Antioch Baptist Church at 1535 Gundry Ave. early last Sunday afternoon, young Wayne Chaney, who had slipped away from his Sunday School class to a TV set, ran in breathlessly and told his daddy, Rev. Joe Chaney Jr., "They won, they won!"

Wayne will have to be forgiven his partial absence from Sunday School. "They" are the Boston Celtics, who had just beaten favored Milwaukee to win the professional basketball championship, with considerable help from Wayne's big brother Don Chaney.

Rev. Chaney, pastor of the Southern Baptist Convention-affiliated church, which he founded in 1961, talked this week about Don, who at 26 is the oldest of five children.

"FIRST OFF," said the proud father, "Don is a good Christian person in every way. He grew up close to the church. When he comes to visit with us here, he always attends church."

The pastor's eyes lit up. "It's a good time when he visits, the congregation has met him, and this time will be especially good."

Yes, he says, people at Antioch Baptist root for the Boston team. "I'd say about 75 per cent of them. But," with a twinkle, "I'm not sure how some of our young people feel when Boston plays the Los Angeles Lakers."

(For those of you who do not follow the world of the bouncing ball, Don Chaney, former star at the University of Houston, is a 6-5 regular guard on the Celtics whose many team skills besides the scoring of points must be seen to be appreciated. And that they were during this nationally televised championship series. Don was credited with the major role in the relentless all-court "press" defense which discombobulated Milwaukee.)

The Chaney's grew up in Baton Rouge, La., where Don was a three-sport star at an all black high school. He received 15 or 16 college scholarship offers, Rev. Chaney recalls, and decided to put a little color into the Houston basketball scene, along with a more famous local phenom, Elvin Hayes. Don now makes his home in Houston.

To conclude on basketball, Rev. Chaney relates that Don "really likes playing with the Celtics, he says they are a close knit team with good friendly personal relations, and they all respect their coach. Don likes the teamwork aspect of the Celtics."

DON, ADDS his father, carries his Christian consciousness beyond churchgoing.

"He's just a real good character. He loves people and people mostly reciprocate. He's level headed and can work with all people, and with kids. I think he'll make a fine coach when he's through playing. He can communicate."

The father permitted himself the observation that in this outlook, father and son think alike. "I think this feeling about all people is one reason why my ministry has had some success. The thing that interests me is the character of the individual."

What Rev. Chaney is saying here, in part, is that there is no room for hatred and racial generalizations of any sort in the real Christian.

"Yes," he added, "I am realistic and know the problems, and I deal with them. A minister of God has to be above the bitterness, but to understand it and the reasons for it—and to know that Christianity can be of help."

It is his opinion that the Christian churches have brought about greater understanding in this country, and he says "I strongly believe that the changes for the better in the South are through Christianity."

Because of this philosophy, Chaney led his church into affiliation with the Southern Baptist Convention, the giant Protestant denomination which is now nationwide, and which once had a quite different reputation on attitudes toward blacks.

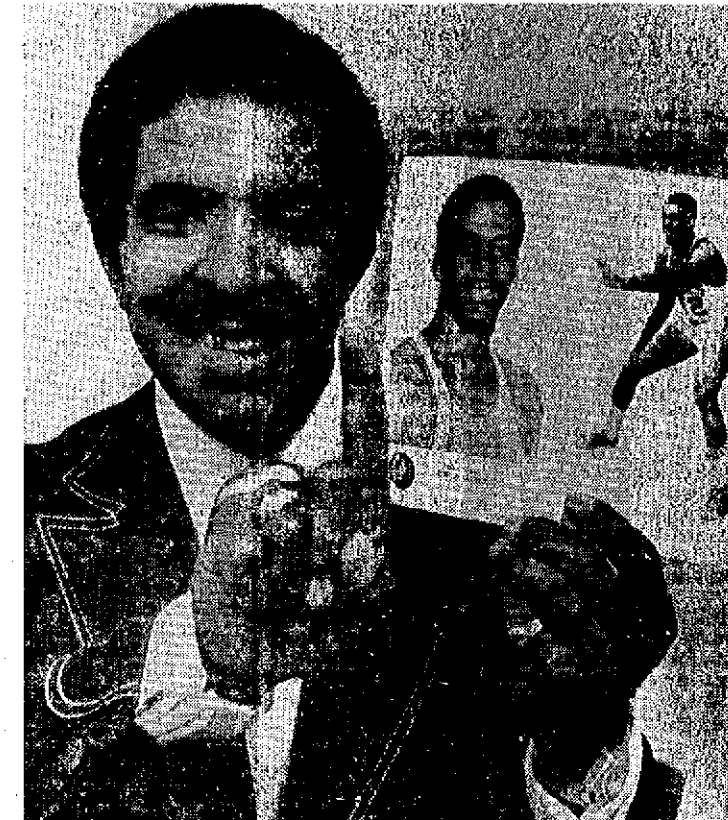

"Southern Baptists have changed," he says. "In this Long Beach-Harbor area there are now seven black churches belonging to the convention. They help us in so many ways. Expertise in every department. They are well organized, the greatest Christian organization I've ever seen. We have leadership workshops on education, training of leaders, missions, it's a strong program."

CHANNEY HIMSELF has been re-elected to the denomination's State Child Care and Family Services Committee, which deals with counseling, family problems, housing for young girls and such things. He is also chairman of Long Beach-Harbor credentials committee, which passes on those seeking affiliation with the denomination (black or white).

"I find that when you get down to it, people are pretty much the same," he says.

Chaney Sr. is not unathletic in his own right. He played baseball for his school in Louisiana, and is rated one of the better golfers in local ministerial circles. (This day, pressure of work forced him to regrettably turn down an invitation to hit the little white ball with Dr. Paul Brooks Leath, pastor of Truett Memorial Southern Baptist Church.)

Antioch Baptist, which took over the property of a Free Methodist congregation, began with five members and now has more than 600, with a youth representation the pastor thinks might be second to none proportionately in this area. He'd like you all to enjoy hearing Antioch's 81-voice Youth Choir.

"Youth" is supposed to be a big problem these years. Says Pastor Chaney: "I don't see any of our boys and girls with bad hangups. We do things in the church, don't have time for hangups. If I see problems, I deal with them. I try to take the time to work with them, to get over the point that first of all they have a responsibility to themselves first. Before you can correct others, you must correct yourself."

AND WHAT DO his people think about being affiliated with the Southern Baptists?

"They think it's fantastic. They understand that the old thinking is outdated."

Antioch Baptist shares Southern Baptist worship practices and theology, with its emphasis on mission work and evangelism, Chaney says, "...and accepting Jesus Christ as personal Saviour and being born again thereby."

"Oh," he adds with a smile, "we may be a little more emotional in our services than the white churches, let's say a little looser. They tell me they'd like to have more of that themselves. We have the knowhow, you have the spirit, one official told me."

In regard to things traditionally frowned upon by Baptists, like dancing, Chaney says: "We don't endorse or promote it, but in things like dancing and drinking, I feel we can't condemn people." He shrugged. "Only the Lord can do that. We are all sinners. We have to always leave the door open to repentance and change."

One small boy in the Antioch church family watched the post-game celebration in the Boston Celtic dressing room, where the champagne flowed, over the heads of players and visitors as well as occasionally down gullets.

"I didn't think Don would fool with champagne," the kid said to the pastor.

Rev. Chaney relates that he told the kid not to worry, that Don was not about to become a big drinker.

"He has too much running to do on the basketball floor," he said.

Evangelism can't ignore the world

LAUSANNE, Switzerland — Evangelism which ignores the social situation of the people for whom it is intended is less than effective because it is less than biblical. Writers from Argentina, England, Peru and the United States make this assertion in the final group of position papers going to the 2,700 participants in the forthcoming International Congress on World Evangelization.

"In the light of the biblical teaching there is no place for an 'otherworldliness' that does not result in the Christian's commitment to his neighbor, rooted in the Gospel," writes Rene Padilla of Buenos Aires.

Both the extreme of a secular theology that aims for an earthly Utopia and the extreme of a concept of salvation that speaks only of preparation of the soul for the hereafter are rejected by Padilla.

On 2nd Coming 'Shocked' by LBSU priest

Religion Editor

I was shocked when reading the statement made by the Rev. Bill McLaughlin, Roman Catholic chaplain at LBSU: "Many students believe that the Second Coming is near, that it may happen next week. This idea is as old as St. Paul. It is a fatalistic approach to crisis."

What does Father Bill mean, fatalistic approach to crisis? I find the definition of the word fatalistic to mean destructive, ruinous and my dictionary gives the definition of crisis as the turning point or deciding event in the course of anything, such as in a disease a turning point toward life or death. The Second Coming is a turning point, a turning point in the direction of eternal life which a believer has already decided upon when he received Christ as Lord.

As a believer in Jesus Christ as Lord and Saviour I look forward with anticipation and joy to the thought that he might return to this world at any moment. Correlating events happening right now with the prophecies of the Bible telling of things which must precede the Second Coming of the Lord, it would appear his Second Coming for his own could very well be at any time. Chapter 2 of the book of Titus deals with the pastoral work of a true minister — he is to speak things which become sound doctrine, and looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ.

I question how, as a representative of God, Father Bill could make such a statement about this great event — unless perhaps I misunderstand his true meaning or intent in his statement.

Yes, the idea is as old as Saint Paul and just as true and wonderful.

Respectfully,

Nightclub to drugs to gospel star

Dave Boyer, former nightclub entertainer who, in 1965 was a suicide-minded victim of drugs and alcoholism, will tell of his spiritual rebirth in Long Beach churches Sunday and Wednesday.

Son of a York, Pa. minister, Boyer at age 18 emceed at the 500 Club in Atlantic City and was well known singing saxophonist. When he became dependant on drugs and drink, he separated from his wife and daughter. One night, he relates, thinking of suicide, he passed a small church that reminded him of his father's church. He fell on his knees and began praying, then went to a phone and called his brother, now the pastor of their late father's church in York.

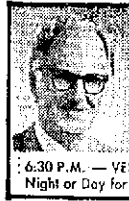

Reunited with his family Boyer has cut four award winning gospel albums, and has become involved in Christian youth work.

He will appear Sunday at El Dorado Park Community Church, 3655 Norwalk Blvd., at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services, and in concert at 7 p.m. On Wednesday at 7 p.m. he will testify and present a concert again at First Baptist Church of Lakewood, 5336 Arbor Road.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

Failure into success

I once knew a remarkable man who taught me a lot. His name was Dr. Albert L. Cliffe, a food chemist in Montreal. But he was also a scientist in other matters like running a business for example. Like turning failure into success as another example.

Al Cliffe had a unique way of thinking about human problems. And he was a genius at helping people find answers to different situations.

One day in downtown Montreal he stopped in a haberdashery shop run by friends of his named Bill and Mary. In the empty shop he found both of them sitting disconsolately, chins sunk in their hands; the picture of despair. "What's the matter with you?" he asked. "You act as though you'd lost your last friend."

"OH," THEY TOLD him, "things are so bad that unless there's a turn for the better, we're going to lose our business. We just don't seem to get enough new customers and the few who do come in don't buy anything and besides we have trouble collecting from our charge accounts."

Just then a customer walked in and looked in various showcases. Bill and Mary continued to maintain a dejected attitude giving him no friendly interest. They made no effort to welcome him nor did they try to sell. Finally the customer became self-conscious in the gloomy atmosphere and walked out. "There goes another guy who bought nothing," Bill said. "So you see why we're so down."

"I'm surprised he stayed as long as he did!" Al Cliffe exploded. "You actually made it hard for him to buy. And just look at this place! Paint is peeling from the showcases; there isn't enough light. Go out and buy a can of white paint; get some big bulbs. Brighten the shop and start up! Make it a happy place! But first you'll need to happy yourselves up. The store will be only as attractive as you are. It will be no more successful as a business than you are successful as persons."

"But we've got to raise $600 this month from customers who owe us," Mary complained. "Otherwise we can't pay our own bills. Why won't people pay their accounts? Look at this pile of bills we're sending out. But little good it will do us. We'll never get out of the red." So they moaned

Al Cliffe looked at the statements stamped and ready to be mailed. "These are not merely bills. They're people," he declared. "You're not thinking right. Now, look, let's do something creative. Bill, you place your hand on these letters. Now, Mary, put your hand on Bill's. And I'll rest my hand on top. Now let's say a prayer for these people who owe you money. And let's try loving them too. If a person doesn't pay his bills, it shows that something is wrong with him, some disorganization. He needs help with his problems. Let's believe that our prayers and love going out along with these bills can help these people. That by doing this we can start real creative values to operating." So spoke that wise and unique man.

WELL, THOSE bills went out along with prayers and loving thoughts. Sounds fantastic doesn't it and stupidly impractical. But what happened? Only this: Before the month was over, Bill and Mary had received 85 per cent of the outstanding accounts on their books, funds they needed so desperately. They began to know their customers as people. Many became good friends. And Bill and Mary dropped their gloomy negative attitudes.

They came alive. They brightened up the shop with light and paint but also with a new spirit of cheerfulness. As a result their store became a changed place and gradu-

Fewer priests, nuns are leaving Catholic Church

NEW YORK (AP) — Evidence that fewer Roman Catholic priests and nuns now are leaving their vocations came Thursday with the announcement that an agency for helping them is closing down its operation.

Malcolm Pennington, chairman of the board of Bearings for Re-Establishment, an agency set up eight years ago to help former clergy and nuns make transition to secular life, said it was suspending activities.

"The exodus of priests and religious from the active ministry appears to have tapered off," he said.

"During the past year, for example, individuals contacting Bearings had dropped to less than 30 per month from a customary rate of over 100 per month with peaks near 400."

The organization, which has aided more than 5,500 ex-clergy and nuns since its founding in 1966, at one time had branch offices in eight U.S. cities and several abroad.

All of these have been closed, except for one in London, England.

Pennington said that other factors, besides the slow-down in departures from religious careers, also have reduced the problem.

"The decision on the part of individuals to move into the secular world is now a less emotionally charged experience and is more acceptable to the general public," he said.

Patricia Tuttle, former Christian Science minister for the Armed Services, will lecture on "What Builds a Spiritually Satisfying Life Style?" Monday, 8 p.m. in Third Church of Christ, Scientist, 3000 E. Third St. The public is invited without charge.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Group Bible studies are becoming more popular, according to the Assemblies of God department of education. The church's Berean Bible School gained 42 per cent in enrollments in correspondence Bible study programs.

Viet jailing of monks hit by U.S. Christians

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

"Our intention," vowed the imprisoned Buddhist monks in South Vietnam, "is to continue fasting and praying in silence until the government frees us so we can return to our monasteries, pagodas and institutes."

There was conflict — between Saigon government and religious sources — over whether that fast was continuing, as pledged 55 days ago "in homage to our Lord and teacher the enlightened Sakya Muni."

But in any case, the fate of more than 300 monks in Saigon's Chi Hoa prison remained uncertain. At least one has died.

It also says Buddhist leaders, newsmen and at one point, a delegation of Vietnamese senators, have been refused contact with the imprisoned monks.

"In the name of God, we protest the imprisonment of these peaceful men," says a statement here by 15 top Protestant, Jewish and Roman Catholic leaders.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Precipitates momentary crisis, which is faced only by getting back to fundamentals. You must be conscious of what you really want and have the determination to do something constructive about it. Relationships are tested and, for the most part, evolve into new forms.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Put your main attention on smoothing out home and family conflicts, particularly parents' concerns. Improvement of your material possessions is underlined.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Be ready for your share of the community's expression of faith. Old friends are actively involved in almost all your enterprises, so it's difficult to maintain your reserve.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Take care not to skip anybody who's expecting you. There's nothing like making a full count of your recent past. Ask yourself what you have done lately in the way of a health program.

Cancer (June 21-July 21): Your friends open many doors for you including a few you'd be wise not to enter. Give extra thought to what you're doing and whom you're working with.

Leo (July 22-Aug. 22): Show progress is normal and reasonable. There are enough details to keep you occupied all day. Time put in sharing past times, competitive games or sports of your choice is well spent.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be solve to make maximum use of this serene Sunday for prayer, planning, and pleasant social contacts. Forgive everybody, settle all differences in all directions.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be prompt and proper. Do your fair share of the community's normal Sunday customs, then see what you can do for those you've overlooked of late.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): With no particular pressure on you can enjoy moving steadily through a good Sunday's round of activity without haste or waste. Planning helps, so does thrill.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your day should be carried out in leisurely fashion. Mental pursuits are favored over strenuous activities. If you travel, make sure all who need to know are told where you are.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): With just a trifle more effort, matters that have been bothering you come out well, in fair balance today. There's time for everything and nearly everything.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be at home and in your glory, or out on the road and probably inconvenienced or at some suggestion you hadn't planned. Your property needs definition, clearing up.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): It's a long Sunday in which you can do many useful and pleasant little things for yourself and your younger associates, perhaps children. The expense is not very high.

'WASP-led black infantry' feared; new draft bill set

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Worried that the United States faces the possibility of "an all-black infantry" being led by a West Point WASP, a Texas congressman has introduced legislation to reinstate the military draft.

Rep. Charles Wilson, a Democrat, told a news conference Friday of "erosion of combat effectiveness" and the need to include all segments of American society in the armed forces as reasons for ending current attempts at maintaining an all-volunteer force.

Academy graduate who served as a lieutenant on a destroyer and at the Pentagon.

He said he doesn't expect the emotional and political issue — supported by the Veterans of Foreign Wars — to be brought up until after the November elections.

He criticized the high cost of recruiting without results and said that 1969 personnel costs were $35.3 billion for 3.5 million men, while present costs are $17.5 billion for 2.2 million men.

"THESE huge amounts of money devoted to personnel, however, are not being translated into recruiting successes," he said. "Even with higher salaries, more recruiting personnel and extravagant advertising campaigns, the armed services — particularly the Army and Marines — show chronic shortfalls in meeting monthly objectives."

Criticizing an all-volunteer force as "totally incompatible with the principles of our egalitarian democracy," Wilson said:

"If there had not been a draft during the Vietnam war, and the sons of the middle class and upper-middle class were not participating in that war, I doubt very seriously that the great domestic pressures that brought about the end of direct American participation would have been forthcoming."

NO ONE has been drafted in the military since Jan. 1, 1973, and authority to draft men expired June 30, 1973. Wilson wants it restored as of July 1, 1975.

"The absence of Selective Service has critically impaired the fighting effectiveness of all of our armed services and in particular the Army and Marine Corps," said Wilson, a member of the House Veterans Affairs and Foreign Affairs committees. "The quality of recruits for these two services has steadily declined from a mental and educational standpoint, and the combat units contain a great disproportion of culturally deprived young men."

"You don't have to have a Ph.D. in sociology to see the dangers and undesirability of having an all-black infantry being led by a West Point WASP," he said.

Equal education not reality yet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Separate educational facilities are inherently unequal," the words intoned 20 years ago Friday by Chief Justice Earl Warren, set the nation on a course toward racial equality that many officials concede has not been fully realized.

"The full achievement of equal education opportunity for all Americans is still before us," Caspar Weinberger, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, lamented on the anniversary of the Supreme Court's unanimous decree in Brown vs. Board of Education of Topeka.

HEW statistics support Weinberger's opinion. More than 11 per cent of all black students still attend all-black segregated schools.

But the focus of the problem has shifted away from the rural South, according to black psychologist Dr. Kenneth Clark. "The major problem now in the desegregation of the schools is clearly the northern urban problem," he said. "There is no question of this."

IN 1972, 71.1 per cent of all northern public schools were more than 50-per-cent black. The figure was 68 per cent in the border states and 53.7 per cent in the old South.

Weinberger said that "nearly all of the black students still isolated by race are in about 20 northern and southern cities which have predominantly black enrollments, making further desegregation difficult to achieve."

gation difficult to achieve."

He was quoting from HEW figures showing that more than 71 per cent of black children attending all-black schools are located in New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Miami, Baltimore, Dallas, Cleveland, Washington, D.C., St. Louis, New Orleans, Atlanta, Newark, East Baton Rouge, La., Kansas City, Mo., Birmingham, Ala., Charleston, S.C., Shreveport, La., and Gary, Ind.

One in every four black school children in those cities attends an all-black school.

"White flight" — the exodus of whites from the cities to the suburbs in the late 1960s and early 1970s — has created geographic barriers locking millions of black students into this situation and fostering the unpopular idea of busing to achieve racial integration.

BUSING OFTEN has been opposed as strongly in all-black communities as it has in all-white communities.

In Topeka, where the Supreme Court case against "separate but equal" schools originated, city schools are still overwhelmingly black and segregated. Black parents who as children were bused to all-black schools now are fighting a plan that would bus their children away from their all-black neighborhood schools to racially integrated ones.

"It's almost back to what it was 20 years ago in some aspects," Topeka NAACP leader Jerry Doby said. "When I was a kid I was bused 20 miles. I left home first and got home last. I don't want to see any child have to go through that crap again."

As a result of busing, the question of racial balance in the schools may be headed for another round in the courts.

On Thursday, just one day prior to the 20th anniversary of the Brown decision, the Senate approved a new antibusing proposal that busing advocates amended in such a way that the final determination of its constitutionality will be made in the federal courts.

4 convicted in '73 slaying of 7 cultists

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Superior Court jury Friday convicted four Philadelphia Black Muslims in the slayings of seven Hanafi Muslims last year in the largest mass murder in the history of the nation's capital.

The jury deliberated three days before finding John Clark, William Christian, John Griffin and Theodore Moody guilty. The convictions carry mandatory life sentences.

Commodities trading affects all consumers

NOTE—Ten years ago, a seat on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange sold for $4,000. Today, the same seat is selling for more than $100,000. The rise in price corresponds with a sharp rise in interest in commodities and the futures markets, a complex trading operation that affects every American consumer. Here is a look at futures trading and what it's all about.

CHICAGO (AP)—Two years ago, Leo Melamed was worrying about the fate of anchovies off the coast of Peru.

Melamed, a commodities broker, knew that the anchovies provided the basis for fish meal used as animal feed in many parts of the world.

He also knew that if there wasn't enough fish meal, people would turn to soybean meal. And that would mean higher prices for soybeans.

When Melamed first started studying the anchovy situation, most Americans couldn't have cared less what happened to soybeans. Or to wheat. Or corn. That was something for the farmers to worry about.

Since then, however, there has indeed been a shortage of anchovies and Americans have learned that the price of soybeans and other commodities is directly responsible for the price of hamburger, bread, eggs and all the other foods that wind up on the dinner table.

The commodities markets, which most people used to think of as the sole concern of stock brokers, farmers and food producers, have come into the spotlight.

LEGISLATION is pending in Congress that would set up a new agency to oversee the $500-billion-a-year commodity business. Some traders say the new agency is not needed; they claim that the Commodities Exchange Authority of the Department of Agriculture can police the business. Other traders admit that there are abuses and say there is a need for more regulation.

Commodities traders deal in something called futures. Futures are contracts that call for delivery at a later date of a particular product. A May future, for example, calls for delivery of a specified amount of a commodity in May. Actually, the traders are buying and selling promises.

Here's how it works. Suppose the price of wheat is now $5 a bushel. I think the price is going to go up; you think it's going down.

I want to buy wheat now; to sell at a profit later; you want to sell wheat now and buy it back at a lower price in the future.

Neither of us owns any wheat. Neither of us wants to own any wheat. We're not farmers or millers. We're insurance men or doctors or lawyers or stock brokers. We simply want to make money.

LET'S assume it's April. I buy 5,000 bushels of September wheat futures at $5.50 a bushel for a total of $27,500. This means that I will get delivery of those 5,000 bushels in September.

Meanwhile, you sell 5,000 bushels of September wheat futures and receive $27,500. You haven't actually sold the wheat—you didn't have it to sell. What you have sold is the promise to deliver the wheat. Now you have to go out and get it.

The price of futures is not the same as the price on the so-called cash market. It varies according to what the traders think the price will be in the future. If the majority of traders think the price will go up, futures prices will be higher than the prices on the cash market. If the majority of people think the price will go down, futures prices will be lower.

BY JULY, the price of September wheat futures is $6.50 a bushel. I was right. The price did go up. Crop production was lower than anticipated. A large export sale cut into the supply at home and increased the demand. But the new crops will start coming in and I don't think the price will go much higher.

I sell my futures and get $32,250, making a profit of $5,000 less the commission that I pay to my broker.

You were out of luck, and although you still have several months before you have to deliver on your contract, you decided to buy the wheat you need now, before the price goes up any more. You buy September futures at $6.50. You have lost $5,000, plus the commissions you paid to your broker.

Both of our contracts are closed out or "offset." Any standing contract is offset when a seller purchases the amount of his contract or when a buyer sells the amount he has bought. Most contracts are offset before the date of delivery and less than 3 per cent are consummated by making or taking delivery.

WHERE does all this trading take place?

The two major commodities exchanges in the United States are the Chicago Board of Trade and the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. The Board of Trade was founded more than a century ago and specializes in grain futures—wheat, corn, soybeans and soybean products. The "Merc" as it is familiarly known, was formally established in 1919, an outgrowth of an earlier Butter and Egg Board, and today specializes in items that weren't even traded 25 years ago: cattle, hogs and pork bellies—uncured bacon.

Trading on both exchanges opens at 9 a.m. with a furious outcry of voices and a forest of waving hands. When the exchanges were originally established, the regulations directed that trading be accomplished by "public outcry." This was to prevent secret deals and the policy has continued to this day.

ANYONE wanting to trade on either exchange must hold a ticket or seat—just as on the stock exchanges. There are 500 seats or members on the Mercantile Exchange and 1,402 on the Board of Trade.

A Mercantile Exchange seat was sold recently for $105,000; about 10 years ago a seat was selling for $4,000. The rise on the Board of Trade has been similarly spectacular. In 1940, a seat on the Board of Trade was $400; today it is $74,500.

There are two kinds of people actually trading on the floor of the exchanges —brokers, who act just like stock brokers, buying and selling futures on the orders of customers, and independent traders known as scalpers who are spending their own money.

Each exchange is divided into several areas known as pits and different commodities are traded at different pits. Each pit is an octagonally shaped area, bounded by steps.

ACCORDING to a popular story at the Board of Trade, at least one trader a week breaks his leg running up and down the steps and the best business in the building is done by a surgeon who tends to aching feet, worn out by hours of standing.

Millions can be made on the exchanges. But millions also can be lost and 70 per cent of all people who trade on the commodities markets lose money.

Melamed, a former president of the Mercantile Exchange, stressed that commodities trading is not for everyone. The risks, the strain and the pace are constant.

Melamed himself worked as a "runner" or messenger for a brokerage house while going to law school in Chicago. He practiced law for four years, but was bored and with borrowed money bought a seat on the mercantile exchange.

MELAMED explained that commodities trading serves several purposes.

The farmer and the food producer use futures trading as a hedge against increases and decreases in prices.

A farmer who is raising wheat, for example, has no problem if the price goes up. He can sell his crop for more than it cost him to raise it and will make a profit.

But what if the price goes down? He needs insurance. So he sells futures. Then, if the price goes up, he loses on the futures, but makes money on his crop. If the price goes down, he loses on his crop, but makes money on the futures, buying them back for less than he got when he sold them.

The food producer, a miller, for example, is in the opposite position. He has a contract to deliver a particular amount of flour several months from now and has promised it at a certain price. If the price of wheat goes down or stays the same, he is in good shape. He can buy the wheat and produce the flour for the amount promised. If the price goes up, he's in trouble. So he buys futures.

OTHER traders are speculators. They are trying to make money by guessing what the price will be. During last year's meat boycott and subsequent price fluctuations, consumer organizations accused speculators of driving up prices.

Melamed denies the charge. He contends that the speculators don't set the prices, they simply take advantage of changes in the supply and demand situation and based on knowledge of things like Agriculture Department reports, weather and population demands, try to make a profit.

A meat industry source who declined to be identified said, however, that speculators can affect the prices. By paying high prices for futures last year, the source said, speculators convinced livestock ranchers that they would get more money for their cattle if they withheld them from market until price controls were lifted. Supply declined, prices went up and a temporary shortage was created.

WHEN the controls were lifted, however, all the farmers brought their animals to market at once. Supply rose again and prices came down, putting many ranchers in the position of selling their cattle at a loss.

At the end of the line, of course, is the consumer.

GM leadership to change this fall

Detroit (UPI)—In a span of just over two months this fall, the leadership of General Motors Corp.—the world's largest auto company—will be changed as its top two corporate officers reach retirement age.

The five-member committee that chooses their replacements must decide on men to lead the company through a period of changing consumer attitudes and increasing government control of the industry. The choices were pretty well decided in the last two years.

GM President Edward N. Cole will reach age 65 on Sept. 17 and Chairman Richard C. Gerstenberg on Nov. 24. Their departure will open a whole series of executive posts for corporate climbers.

Cole's successor has been narrowed to either Elliott M. "Pete" Estes or Richard L. Terrell, both chosen executive vice presidents in mid-1972—enough time to allow top executives to look them over.

Gerstenberg's replacement was almost surely decided when Thomas A. Murphy, a 32-year veteran of the financial staff, was named vice chairman in early 1972, only the third man to hold the post created in 1967.

SINCE his selection as vice chairman, Murphy has gained greater exposure as a spokesman for the company in economic and international affairs. Until 1968, when he was treasurer, Murphy had been part of the financial staff. Then, he was shifted to vice president in charge of the car and truck group to give him added experience in the operating end of the business.

Estes, now 58, moved up through the ranks of the automotive engineers, following many of the same steps taken by Cole during his rise to the presidency. Terrell, 55, began his ascent to the top through non-automotive operations.

Each has his backers and detractors among the GM hierarchy, but several sources indicate no final choice has been made and probably won't be until sometime during the summer. Until then, the economic and social forces that have shaken GM may change with each shift lending support to one or the other.

GM's recovery from its worst first-quarter financial results in 26 years could have a strong bearing on the choices. Sales slumped 27 per cent to $6.9 billion in the first three months of the year, but profits plunged even greater—an 85 per cent drop from a year ago to $817 million which was not even enough to cover the regular quarterly dividend.

The jobs Murphy, Estes and Terrell are seeking are well-paying ones.

Gerstenberg was paid $323,000 in salaries and bonuses in 1973, highest for any auto industry executive. Cole received $333,000 in salaries and bonuses.

While Terrell and Estes followed different routes to their present spots, they have been on an equal footing since the late 1960s. Only company insiders know which may have the inside track to the presidency.

TWO OF the last three presidents of GM have been engineering-oriented which might seem to give Estes an edge along with his working knowledge of the automotive division. But, in an era in which government is playing an ever-larger role in the industry and contacts with the public are more important, Estes might be the choice.

Women must grasp personal finance ideas

NEW YORK (UPI)—American women have long controlled the purse strings but until recently were denied credit. Now that new legislation has ushered in financial equality for women, many need answers to questions they never dared ask.

"Women must be encouraged to drop the stereotype role of 'the little woman' and become big women about their finances," says Aileen Paul, the first consumer affairs representative for the New York State Bankers Association (NYSBA). The spokeswoman for 272 full-service banks is conducting a whistle-stop tour of the state to give women information on banking, budgeting and credit.

"Even among businesswomen there is a surprising gap in their grasp of personal finance," Ms. Paul said. "Men often appear to understand consumer banking," she says, "but not as clearly as they should."

IN HER travels, Ms. Paul has been flooded with questions from women concerned about their credit status following a Federal Housing Authority ban on discrimination against women seeking mortgages, and the American Banking Association's vow to extend equal loan treatment to both sexes. In April, the New York Legislature passed a bill guaranteeing women equal access to credit.

But the new economic freedom for women has its pitfalls. "The importance of credit has been over-emphasized for women in their rush for equality," warns Ms. Paul. "We mustn't be led into the same trap as men—over-extension."

To help women develop financial know-how and avoid the danger zones of easier credit, Ms. Paul has introduced a free booklet prepared by the NYSBA. Entitled "What Every Woman (and Man) Should Know About Consumer Banking," it urges women to establish credit in their own name and limit credit payments to 20 per cent of their monthly income.

Arguments for and against establishment of a parking district for downtown Long Beach will be presented at Long Beach Area Chamber of Commerce general membership breakfasts Wednesday and May 29 at the Long Beach Elks Club.

Next week's breakfast will feature Bill Williams, chairman of the Downtown Parking and Business Improvement Commission. The May 29 breakfast will feature Bonnie Helton, of the Long Beach Free Enterprise Association.

The May events are the first in a new series of chamber breakfasts that will be held each Wednesday from 7:15 to 8:30 a.m. at the Elks Club, said Ken Hazzard, 1974 breakfast chairman and member of the chamber board.

THE DAILY INVESTOR

Decide: invest or gamble

By DON CAMPBELL

No matter how naive he may be on the subject, I don't know of anyone who can successfully kid himself into thinking that he goes out to the race track to "invest" in a winning horse.

The line between "investment" and "gamble" may — in some areas — be a little fuzzy, but in nine out of 10 cases, it's pretty clearly defined.

Q: I HAVE followed your comments on Scotch whiskey investments with interest — especially the letter several months ago from a man with a very bad experience in this field.

I would like to comment on this from the viewpoint of personal experience as a successful Scotch investor.

ed: (1) bought his whiskey at too high a price, (2) bought from a firm he would not buy back from him, and (3) he bought, in addition to grain and malt, blend — a gross mistake and a bad product that is being peddled by the late proliferation of Scotch brokers who take advantage of investors who are withdrawing shy away from the bear stock market.

Unfortunately, you individual did not investigate thoroughly. I have looked at the prospectus of most brokers in the business, and can determine the fast-buck artists right away. By the way, Mr. Campbell, are you a Scotch investor?

gambler, either.

I've made no particular secret of the fact that I consider trading in Scotch whiskey warehouse receipts an "investment" exactly the same way that I regard a dice game as an investment.

And, while I'll concede that money has been made in the field, I also take the position that the losers far outnumber the winners.

This has given me the same popularity with domestic Scotch whisky brokers that the average mosquito enjoys at a nudist colony.

Let me quote for you form letter that the Scotch Whisky Assoc-tation of Edinburgh, Scotland sends out the response to inquiries from the U.S.:

"Dear Sir, As you are aware both new filling and matured whisky sometimes purchased as form of speculation with the intention of reselling them at a profit. It should be emphasized that our an extremely small proportion of the total amount of whisky sold in Scotland is bought and sold in this way. All the principal blending com-

nies finance their stocks of whisky and buy mature whisky when they happen to find themselves short of a particular type or make. There is no organized "Whisky change" as exists for other commodities, nor is there any officially recognized list of buying and selling prices for whisky of different types and ages. This type of business is highly speculative. The Scotch Whisky Association does not, as a matter of policy, offer advice on the purchase or sale of whisky as an investment."

That says it pretty well and while I am delighted that you, personally, have found it rewarding, I would still refer any prospective "investors" to this field to dig out the December 1973 issue of Dun's Review magazine and read a hair-raising article entitled: "Scams on the Rocks? Is the whole key investment game down the drain?"

Q: I HAVE never taken too much interest in the stock market, but was recently left some blue chips and over-the-counter stocks in an estate settlement.

I've studied some of the library books, but the one piece of information I haven't been able to find is this: What do the first figures after the name of a stock indicate?

A: This dollar figure, if no footnote is indicated — means that this is normal annual dividend paid by the company.

But, if a letter folthe dollar figure y have to look at the notes to the tabl material. If it's an "e instance, it means this is the amount of dend declared, or paid
far this year.

SOME PEOPLE like to turn up their noses at

beauty pageants these days, but such shows continue to be popular on television. So, for those of you who care, the 23rd annual "Miss U.S.A. Beauty Pageant" will be televised over CBS (Channel 2) from 10 to midnight this evening.

Helen O'Connell will be the TV hostess and Bob Barker the emcee for the ceremonies in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

As an indication of the popularity of such programs, "America's Junior Miss Pageant," which aired as a CBS special last week, took second place in the national Nielsen ratings for the week that ended May 12.

The only show to top it, with a 25.6 rating to the pageant's 25.3, was the TV movie "The Story of Pretty Boy Floyd," starring Martin Sheen.

"All in the Family" was third, "Streets of San Francisco" and "Medical Center" tied for fourth,

"M-A-S-H," sixth, "Mary Tyler Moore" seventh, "Marcus Welby, M.D." eighth, "The Waltons" ninth and "Bob Newhart" 10th.

A CBS REPEAT special, "The Incredible Flight of the Snow Geese," finished a strong 12th in the ratings, and NBC's Glen Campbell special tied "The Odd Couple" for 26th place.

An NBC pilot movie starring Peter Graves, "The Underground Man," took 14th spot. Two other NBC movies that will be series in the fall — "In Tandem," starring Claude Akins and Frank Converse, and "Lucas Tanner," starring David Hartman — finished 32nd and 33rd, respectively.

The NBA playoff game a week ago Friday night, between the Boston Celtics and the Milwaukee Bucks, was tied with "Adam-12" for 40th place on the list.

NEELY REYNOLDS, selected as "The Singing Cowboy" in a nationwide search, will make his first TV appearance since winning that honor when he guests on ABC's "American Bandstand," from noon to 1 today on Channel 7.

The native of Fort Worth, Tex., will sing both sides of his first recording, "Sweet Little Rock & Roller" and "This Country Road."

Reynolds is working up a nightclub act and reports that "the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas wants me to make my nightclub debut in their place."

STARTING Monday, KTTV (Channel 11) will give 52 Los Angeles community service organizations each free sponsorship for a week on the station's prime-time "MetroNews," which airs at

KCET auction raises $514,000

A record $514,000 was raised during the sixth annual KCET Channel 28 auction, which concluded its nine-night run last Saturday.

The total marked an increase of $43,000 over last year and improved the efficiency factor by recording sales of more than $9,500 per hour, $800 more than in 1973.

The 54-hour marathon bid-and-buy by telephone auction was conducted by the non-commercial station to help offset its operating deficit. Hundreds of volunteers, underwriters, donors and viewer-bidders contributed to the auction, according to Douglas Norberg, executive producer.

Included among the high bid items this year were 39 framed pennies donated by Jack Benny which sold for $1,750; Fred Astaire's dancing shoes from "Finian's Rainbow," $625; an 1847 bottle of French wine,

$1,150; a Katharine Hepburn self-portrait in the role of Coco Chanel, $3,300; a complete set of Apollo and Skylab space mission jacket patches, $1,900; and a 12th century mosaic miniature, $7,400.

Since 1969, funds from auctions have totaled $1,925,000 for KCET, Norberg said.

10 each night (as well as at 11 a.m. daily).

The 52 organizations were selected by an advisory committee, headed by Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley.

CHANNEL 7's "Eyewitness News" co-anchors, John Schubeck and Judd Hambrick, will fly to New York to serve separate anchor stints on ABC-TV network's Saturday editions of "ABC Weekend News" during June and July.

Schubeck will anchor the 11:15-to-11:30 p.m. Saturday network news on June 8, 15, 22 and 29. Hambrick will anchor for the network on July 6, 13, 20 and 27.

Here's a long jumper that's flipped out

WASHINGTON STATE'S John Delamere was just an ordinary 25-8 1/2 long jumper until three weeks ago when he discovered a new technique — a mid-air flip that, he claims, has taken him 28 feet in practice. But in Friday's opening Pac-8 competition he flew only 25-6 1/4 for second place.

54,943 see Braves tip Dodgers, 5-3

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

For nine games the Dodgers could do little wrong, hitting and pitching, running and bunting, and taking advantage of every mistake by the opposition.

It added up to a nine-game winning streak and there were some who thought might make it a runaway in the National League West.

So, when the biggest crowd yet to see a major league game this season — 54,943, 53,927 of them paid — jammed into Dodger Stadium, the Dodgers came up with one of their shabbiest exhibitions.

They committed four errors in all, including a very costly one in the top half of the 11th inning when the Atlanta Braves scored twice, breaking a 3-3 tie, to post a 5-3 victory over the Dodgers and end the long win spree.

Whatever it is about the Braves and huge crowds, it brings out the worst in the Dodgers.

In Atlanta, on April 8, the day Henry Aaron swatted his historic No. 715, there were 53,000 people in the park and 39 million more watching on television.

So what happened? The Dodgers made six errors, that's all, and lost, 7-4.

"We didn't deserve this one," manager Walt Alston said in something of an understatement.

"For the most part our defense has been good. But when we go a little bad we seem to do it in bunches."

Friday night the Dodgers again must have been awed by the presence of Aaron. Of the Braves' five runs, only one was earned.

The most damaging error occurred in the 11th when, with runners at first and second and only one out, pinch hitter Mike Lum lifted a pop fly behind third base and in foul territory.

Ron Cey dropped it. Given a second life, Lum then drilled a double to center, scoring John Oates and Craig Robinson.

Cey alone is not to blame, however. In the fifth inning, when Atlanta came from behind to score three runs and take a 3-2 lead Bill Russell and Bill Buckner each committed errors, both times leading to runs.

The Dodgers pounded out 13 hits, including doubles by Jim Wynn, Russell and two by Buckner as well as a three-base hit by Wynn.

But they repeatedly failed to get the timely hit, stranding 11 runners for the game. In only one inning were they retired in order, in the 11th, by Danny Frisella, the third Atlanta pitcher.

Dodgers made it 2-0 when Cey walked, took second on a single by Ferguson and scored when Russell doubled.

After Atlanta went ahead, 3-2, in the fifth inning against Al Downing and with the help of the two errors, Wynn's got the O'Malleys even in the seventh with his triple, that scored Buckner, who was aboard with his fourth hit of the game.

Buckner got his fourth hit, a double, after two were out in the ninth. Wynn then reached first safely when Darrell Evans, the third baseman, booted his grounder for an error. But Steve Garvey forced Wynn at second ending the threat and sending the game into extra innings.

Aaron, the man they honored and cheered, and even chased a time or two in the outfield, failed to get home run No. 722, although in the 10th inning he backed Tom Paciorek to the warning track.

He also grounded out, (Continued Pg. C-2, Col. 1)

UCLA track leader

Schiller snares Pac-8 shotput

Finishing 1-2-3 in the shotput with Dave Schiller, Roger Freberg and Jim Neidhart all cracking 60 feet, defending NCAA and Pacific-8 champion UCLA piled up 49 1/2 points Friday to take the first-day lead in the conference track and field meet at the Coliseum.

With four runners scoring in the 3,000-meter steeplechase led by Todd Labers' winning 8:48.0, Oregon grabbed second place with 36 points.

However, the Webfoots aren't expected to be a factor in the team race, decided by the final 13 events today. Darkhorse Oregon State was in third place with 31 points after six events.

Washington State was fourth with 25 points while USC, which won this meet two years ago, stood fifth with 23 1/2. Washington (18), Stanford (3) and non-scoring California followed.

USC coach Vern Wolfe didn't think the Bruins, who are bidding for their fifth Pac-8 title in six years, have anything won yet.

"I think any one of five teams can win this meet," said Wolfe. "Saturday is going to be a real donnybrook and I think our chances are good."

"We have four men qualified in the 440 which means we may have a good chance in the mile relay. The relays are going to be real important. We've got to get a lot of points in both relays."

Before a sparse crowd of 1,000, Schiller, the former Millikan High star who was runnerup last year, won the shotput with a heave of 61-10 1/4 with Freberg, a Rams draft choice and the discus favorite today, second at 61-6 1/4.

Neidhart, a freshman, wasn't expected to compete because of an elbow injury but took third at 65-1 1/2.

Another elbow injury—to versatile Rory Kotinek—cost UCLA points in the javelin, which Oregon

Muir outleaps Poly to title

By KEN PIVERNETZ
Staff Writer

Muir of Pasadena, getting an unexpected boost from long jumper Bill Smith, won the CIF, 4-A track title from Poly Friday night before a turnout of 5,084 at Ceritos College.

Smith pulled a mild surprise by leading 22 feet, 9 1/4 inches to win the long jump after Poly had closed to within two points at one juncture.

The Jackrabbits, however, evidently finished 11 points behind Muir. The Pasadena school tallied 37, Poly 26.

The closest Poly got was the short end of a 25-23 score when Greg Moore and Ridgeway Robinson went two-three in the 220, running 22.0-22.1.

But then Smith added six points with his victory in the long jump and the Mustangs added another six with a convincing win in the closing mile relay (3:18.5). Poly was again second in 3:20.4.

Benny Robinson, inserted on the leadoff leg for the first time, Moore,

Larry Flewellen and R. Robinson had earlier given the Jackrabbits a

Angels have breakdown in communication — and runs

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — There was a time when Frank Robinson and Bobby Winkles would sit down and hold conversations about baseball.

"Not any more," Robinson said Friday night

after he spent the evening on the bench, a witness to a painful 2-1 loss to the Minnesota Twins.

Robinson did not elaborate on his statement but that simple remark made it obvious his relationship with the manager is not as close as it once was.

Robinson has missed four games in less than a week because of a strained left wrist which required a cortisone shot last Sunday.

However, he indicated he was ready and close to 100 per cent able to perform Friday against the Twins. It was Winkles' decision to give him another day off.

"It was my decision," Winkles said. "I didn't even ask him. But he'll play Saturday and probably one game of the doubleheader Sunday."

Robinson felt his absence Friday might have stemmed from a misunderstanding.

"He (Winkles) came to me on Wednesday and asked me how the wrist felt. I said it was still a little tender but that was from the shot. I told him I could play."

"Every day I come to the park I want to play and I expect to play," Robinson said, "but I've been in this game too long to get upset. I'm not going to go sit in a corner and sulk."

"He probably was doing this for my own good, but I think he's got to look at the team first. I don't want him putting me and my personal considerations before the team."

Runs, something that Robinson contributes to frequently, have become increasingly scarce for the Angels. They have scored three runs or less in nine of their last 10 games and have been beaten in nine of their last 11, falling two games below .500 level.

Frank Tanana, the snake-bitten rookie, could have sued for additional support against Minnesota. The Angel offense amounted to one run and four hits against a combination of Joe Decker and Bill Campbell, the latter pitching the ninth inning and claiming his eighth save.

Faces 12 Preakness rivals

Cannonade bids for No. 2

BALTIMORE (AP) — Kentucky Derby runner-up Hudson County and Heir to the Line, the Preakness Prep winner, were singled out Friday as horses to watch by trainer Woody Stephens.

Channel 2, 2 p.m.

on the even of his Derby winner Cannonade's bid to capture the Preakness.

"There are five or six horses in here that can run," said Stephens when asked what horse he thought Cannonade would have to beat today.

But he only named two: "That little horse that ran second to me in the Derby and Tommy Kelly's horse (Kelly trains Heir to the Line)."

In all, 12 3-year-olds will oppose Cannonade in the 99th Preakness at Pimlico, which with 13 starters will have a record purse of $200,000, with a record winner's share of $156,500.

Trainer Stanley (Skip) Shapoff agreed with Stephens' high estimate of Hudson County, owned by Robert B. Cohen.

"My horse does have a very valuable turn of speed and in the Derby he demonstrated stamina," said Shapoff. "I think my horse can beat him."

Heir to the Line, owned by Craig F. Cullinan, has won four of five starts this year and has raced on the Pimlico track, an advantage denied John M. Olin's Cannonade and the six other Derby starters who are in the Preakness.

Heir to the Line, who worked three-sixteenths of a mile Friday, won the 1-16 mile Preakness Prep here last Saturday. The last Preakness Prep winner to win the Preakness was Greek Money in 1962.

Other Derby starters entered in the Preakness are Buck's Bid, who worked a half mile Friday in 48 1/2 seconds; Destroyer, who went three-eighths in 35 1/4; Little Current, who moved three-eighths in 37 1/4; Rube the Great and J.R.'s Pet.

Others set to make their debuts in Triple Crown competition are Jolly Johu, All Game, Neapolitan Way, Silver Florin and Kin Run.

All have had previous races at Pimlico except Kin Run, who raced for a claiming tag in his last start, and Silver Florin, who was supplemented for the Preakness for $10,000 after an impressive victory in the 1-16 Twin Spires Puse at Churchill Downs on Derby Day.

Jolly Johu won the Survivor Stakes at Pimlico and was third in the Preakness Prep.

Kommunity Kavalcade Fair

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

KNBC's "The Sunday Show," hosted by Kelly Lange and Paul Moyer, will originate tomorrow afternoon from Lakewood's Mayfair Park during the city's Kommunity Kavalcade Fair. The program airs from 4:30 to 6 on Channel 4.

Interviews with Lakewood officials and others attending the fair will be featured on the TV show. Some celebrity guests are due to be on hand.

The fair, which this year has a Roaring '20s theme, is sponsored by Lakewood's Department of Recreation and Community Services. It will start at noon with the arrival of bike caravans traveling from the city's other parks. Mayfair Park is located at 5720 Clark Ave. in Lakewood.

SOME PEOPLE like to turn up their noses at

beauty pageants these days, but such shows continue to be popular on television. So, for those of you who care, the 23rd annual "Miss U.S.A. Beauty Pageant" will be televised over CBS (Channel 2) from 10 to midnight this evening.

Helen O'Connell will be the TV hostess and Bob Barker the emcee for the ceremonies in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

As an indication of the popularity of such programs, "America's Junior Miss Pageant," which aired as a CBS special last week, took second place in the national Nielsen ratings for the week that ended May 12.

The only show to top it, with a 25.6 rating to the pageant's 25.3, was the TV movie "The Story of Pretty Boy Floyd," starring Martin Sheen.

"All in the Family" was third, "Streets of San Francisco" and "Medical Center" tied for fourth,

"M-A-S-H" sixth, "Mary Tyler Moore" seventh, "Marcus Welby, M.D." eighth, "The Waltons" ninth and "Bob Newhart" 10th.

A CBS REPEAT special, "The Incredible Flight of the Snow Geese," finished a strong 12th in the ratings, and NBC's Glen Campbell special tied "The Odd Couple" for 26th place.

An NBC pilot movie starring Peter Graves, "The Underground Man," took 14th spot. Two other NBC movies that will be series in the fall — "In Tandem," starring Claude Akins and Frank Converse, and "Lucas Tanner," starring David Hartman — finished 32nd and 33rd, respectively.

The NBA playoff game a week ago Friday night, between the Boston Celtics and the Milwaukee Bucks, was tied with "Adam-12" for 40th place on the list.

NEELY REYNOLDS, selected as "The Singing Cowboy" in a nationwide search, will make his first TV appearance since winning that honor when he guests on ABC's "American Bandstand" from noon to 1 today on Channel 7.

The native of Fort Worth, Tex., will sing both sides of his first recording, "Sweet Little Rock & Roller" and "This Country Road."

Reynolds is working up a nightclub act and reports that "the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas wants me to make my nightclub debut in their place."

STARTING Monday, KTTV (Channel 11) will give 52 Los Angeles community service organizations each free sponsorship for a week on the station's prime-time "MetroNews," which airs at

KCET auction raises $514,000

A record $514,000 was raised during the sixth annual KCET Channel 28 auction, which concluded its nine-night run last Saturday.

The total marked an increase of $43,000 over last year and improved the efficiency factor by recording sales of more than $9,500 per hour, $800 more than in 1973.

The 54-hour marathon bid-and-buy by telephone auction was conducted by the non-commercial station to help offset its operating deficit. Hundreds of volunteers, underwriters, donors and viewer-bidders contributed to the auction, according to Douglas Norberg, executive producer.

Included among the high bid items this year were 39 framed pennies donated by Jack Benny which sold for $1,750; Fred Astaire's dancing shoes from "Finian's Rainbow," $825; an 1847 bottle of French wine,

$1,150; a Katharine Hepburn self-portrait in the role of Coco Chanel, $3,300; a complete set of Apollo and Skylab space mission jacket patches, $1,900; and a 12th century mosaic miniature, $7,400.

Since 1969, funds from auctions have totaled $1,926,000 for KCET, Norberg said.

54,943 see Braves tip Dodgers, 5-3

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

For nine games the Dodgers could do little wrong, hitting and pitching, running and bunting, and taking advantage of every mistake by the opposition.

It added up to a nine-game winning streak and there were some who thought might make it a runaway in the National League West.

So, when the biggest crowd yet to see a major league game this season — 54,943, 53,927 of them paid — jammed into Dodger Stadium, the Dodgers came up with one of their shabbiest exhibitions.

They committed four errors in all, including a very costly one in the top half of the 11th inning when the Atlanta Braves scored twice, breaking a 3-3 tie, to post a 5-3 victory over the Dodgers and end the long win spree.

Whatever it is about the Braves and huge crowds, it brings out the worst in the Dodgers.

In Atlanta, on April 8, the day Henry Aaron swatted his historic No. 715, there were 53,000 people in the park and 39 million more watching on television.

So what happened? The Dodgers made six errors, that's all, and lost, 7-4.

"We didn't deserve this one," manager Walt Alston said in something of an understatement.

"For the most part our defense has been good. But when we go a little bad we seem to do it in bunches."

Friday night the Dodgers again must have been awed by the presence of Aaron. Of the Braves' five runs, only one was earned.

The most damaging error occurred in the 11th when, with runners at first and second and only one out, pinch hitter Mike Lum lifted a pop fly behind third base and in foul territory.

Ron Cey dropped it. Given a second life, Lum then drilled a double to center, scoring John Oates and Craig Robinson.

Cey alone is not to blame, however. In the fifth inning, when Atlanta came from behind to score three runs and take a 3-2 lead Bill Russell and Bill Buckner each committed errors, both times leading to runs.

The Dodgers pounded out 13 hits, including doubles by Jim Wynn, Russell and two by Buckner as well as a three-base hit by Wynn. But they repeatedly failed to get the timely hit, stranding 11 runners for the game. In only one inning were they retired in order, in the 11th, by Danny Frisella, the third Atlanta pitcher.

Wynn's double in the first inning scored Buckner and in the fourth the Dodgers made it 2-0 when Cey walked, took second on a single by Ferguson and scored when Russell doubled.

After Atlanta went ahead, 3-2, in the fifth inning against Al Downing and with the help of the two errors, Wynn's got the O'Malleys even in the seventh with his triple, that scored Buckner, who was aboard with his fourth hit of the game.

Buckner got his fourth hit, a double, after two were out in the ninth. Wynn then reached first safely when Darrell Evans, the third baseman, booted his grounder for an error. But Steve Garvey forced Wynn at second ending the threat and sending the game into extra innings.

Aaron, the man they honored and cheered, and even chased a time or two in the outfield, failed to get home run No. 722, although in the 10th inning he backed Tom Paciorek to the warning track.

He also grounded out, (Continued Pg. C-2, Col. 1)

UCLA track leader

Schiller snafus Pac-8 shotput

Finishing 1-2-3 in the shotput with Dave Schiller, Roger Freberg and Jim Neidhart all cracking 60 feet, defending NCAA and Pacific-8 champion UCLA piled up 49 1/2 points Friday to take the first-day lead in the conference track and field meet at the Coliseum.

With four runners scoring in the 3,000-meter steeplechase led by Todd Lathers' winning 8:48.0, Oregon grabbed second place with 36 points.

However, the Webfoots aren't expected to be a factor in the team race, decided by the final 13 events today. Darkhorse Oregon State was in third place with 31 points after six events.

Washington State was fourth with 25 points while USC, which won this meet two years ago, stood fifth with 23 1/2. Washington (18), Stanford (3) and non-scoring California followed.

USC coach Vern Wolfe didn't think the Bruins, who are bidding for their fifth Pac-8 title in six years, have anything won yet.

"I think any one of five teams can win this meet," said Wolfe. "Saturday is going to be a real donnybrook and I think our chances are good."

"We have four men qualified in the 440 which means we may have a good chance in the mile relay. The relays are going to be real important. We've got to get a lot of points in both relays."

Before a sparse crowd of 1,000, Schiller, the former Millikan High star who was runnerup last year, won the shotput with a heave of 61-10 1/4 with Freberg, a Rams draft choice and the discus favorite today, second at 61-6 1/4.

Neidhart, a freshman, wasn't expected to compete because of an elbow injury but took third at 65-1-2.

Another elbow injury—to versatile Rory Kotinek—cost UCLA points in the javelin, which Oregon

Muir outleaps Poly to title

BY KEN PIVERNETZ
Staff Writer

Muir of Pasadena, getting an unexpected boost from long jumper Bill Smith, won the CIF 4-A track title from Poly Friday night before a turnout of 6,084 at Cerritos college.

Smith pulled a mild surprise by leading 22 feet, 9 1/2 inches to win the long jump after Poly had closed to within two points at one juncture.

The Jackrabbits, however, evidently finished 11 points behind Muir. The Pasadena school tallied 37, Poly 26.

The closest Poly got was the short end of a 25-23 score when Greg Moore and Ridgeway Robinson went two-three in the 220, running 22.0-22.1.

But then Smith added six points with his victory in the long jump and the Mustangs added another six with a convincing win in the closing mile relay (3:18.5). Poly was again second in 3:20.4.

Benny Robinson, inserted on the leadoff leg for the first time, Moore,

Larry Flewellen and R. Robinson had earlier given the Jackrabbits a

Angels have breakdown in communication — and runs

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — There was a time when Frank Robinson and Bobby Winkles would sit down and hold conversations about baseball.

"Not any more," Robinson said Friday night

after he spent the evening on the bench, a witness to a painful 2-1 loss to the Minnesota Twins.

Robinson did not elaborate on his statement but that simple remark made it obvious his relationship with the manager is not as close as it once was.

Faces 12 Preakness rivals

Cannonade bids for No. 2

BALTIMORE (AP) — Kentucky Derby runner-up Hudson County and Heir to the Line, the Preakness Prep winner, were singled out Friday as horses to watch by trainer Woody Stephens.

Channel 2, 2 p.m.

on the even of his Derby winner Cannonade's bid to capture the Preakness.

"There are five or six horses in here that can run," said Stephens when asked what horse he thought Cannonade would have to beat today.

But he only named two: "That little horse that ran second to me in the Derby and Tommy Kelly's horse (Kelly trains Heir to the Line)."

In all, 12 3-year-olds will oppose Cannonade in the 99th Preakness at Pimlico, which with 13 starters will have a record purse of $209,000, with a record winner's share of $156,500.

Trainer Stanley (Skip) Shapoff agreed with Stephens' high estimate of Hudson County, owned by Robert B. Cohen.

"My horse does have a very valuable turn of speed and in the Derby he demonstrated stamina," said Shapoff. "I think my horse can beat him."

Heir to the Line, owned by Craig F. Cullinan, has won four of five starts this year and has raced on the Pimlico track, an advantage denied John M. Olin's Cannonade and the six other Derby starters who are in the Preakness.

Heir to the Line, who worked three-sixteenths of a mile Friday, won the 1-16 mile Preakness Prep here last Saturday. The last Preakness Prep winner to win the Preakness was Greek Money in 1962.

Other Derby starters entered in the Preakness are Buck's Bid, who worked a half mile Friday in 48 1/4 seconds; Destroyer, who went three-eighths in 35 1/4; Little Current, who moved three-eighths in 37 1/4; Rube the Great and J.R.'s Pet.

Others set to make their debuts in Triple Crown competition are Jolly John, All Game, Neapolitan Way, Silver Florin and Kin Run.

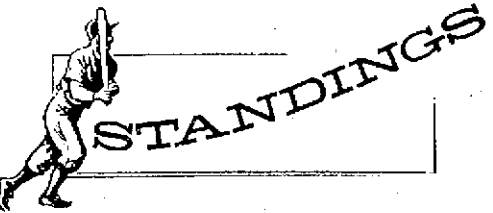

All have had previous races at Pimlico except Kin Run, who raced for a claiming tag in his last start, and Silver Florin, who was supplemented for the Preakness for $10,000 after an impressive victory in the 1-16 Twin Spires Puse at Churchill Downs on Derby Day.

Jolly John won the Survivor Stakes at Pimlico and was third in the Preakness Prep.

Rain, hail washes away practice for Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—A hail and thunderstorm for all practical purposes wiped out Friday's last full day of practice for the 500-mile auto race.

And for the second weekend in a row, more storms threatened to interfere with qualifications for the rich Speedway race, with 18 positions still open in the 33-car lineup.

The 2½-mile oval was opened for exactly seven minutes early in the afternoon and three cars got onto the track before the downpours hit.

Cars driven by Sam Sessions, John Cannon and John Mahler got onto the track only briefly before being called in.

Underpasses in the ancient racing plant were flooded temporarily, as were some offices under grandstands. Several thousand fans were on the grounds when the storm broke.

There is a 50 per cent chance of showers and thundershowers for today, the second and supposedly final day of the time trials for the million-dollar race a week from Sunday.

If it rains, washing out all or a good part of the seven-hour qualifying period, Speedway officials are expected to extend the trials to Sunday.

Last Saturday, most of the seven hours set aside for qualifications were washed out. Still, 15 cars qualified and three-time winner A.J. Foyt claimed the pole position, at least temporarily, at an average speed of 191.632 miles per hour.

Eleven cars in the lineup when a storm ended qualifications last Saturday were still eligible to shoot for the pole—the inside spot in the front row.

Among the strongest challengers to Foyt for the pole are defending champion Gordon Johncock, Mario Andretti, a former winner, and Mike Hiss.

Andretti apparently still is undecided which of two cars he will drive — a

Ontario enduro tests compacts

By ALLEN WOLFE
Staff Writer

ONTARIO—Night professional road racing, spawned by 12 and 24-hour events at LeMans, Daytona and Sebring, comes to Southern California for the first time when Ontario Motor Speedway stages the B.F. Goodrich Radial Challenge today.

The $10,000 3-hour enduro for sub-compact and compact Colts, Vegas, Pintos, Gremlins, Opels, Datsuns and Toyotas, kicks off the two-day, $55,000 Ontario International Road Races sanctioned by the International Motor Sports Assn. (IMSA).

A field of up to 40 cars is expected to start the 6 p.m. race. When darkness falls soon after 8, drivers will have only their headlights to guide them through the tricky switch-back curves of Ontario's 20-turn, 3.2-mile infield road course.

Heading the list of entries is the Miller & Norburn team of Peace Corps director Nick Crow of Washington, D.C., and co-driver John Morton of El Segundo, a three-time SCCA national driving champion. They will drive the same BMW 2002 that carried them to victory in the IMSA season opener at Road Atlanta on April 21.

On Sunday, the big-bore American Corvette, Camaro and Mustang production sports cars and sedans duel the lighter and more maneuverable European-made Porsche Carreras, Panteras, BMWs and RS Capi in the $35,000 Camel GT Challenge, a four-hour enduro beginning at 1 p.m. The race is preceded

Nascar drivers qualify today

DOVER, Del. (UPI) — Richard Petty, Cale Yarborough and the rest of the Nascar cast will begin qualifying today for the 40 starting places in Sunday's Mason-Dixon 500.

Other top drivers entered include Donnie Allison, Buddy Baker, Dave Marcis, James Hylton and Benny Parsons.

SIMPSON TAKES TESTS ON STOMACH

O.J. Simpson, the Buffalo Bills' record-breaking running back, is undergoing tests to determine the cause of a stomach disorder.

Simpson's personal physician ordered him to check into Daniel Freeman Hospital in Inglewood Thursday for a day or two of tests. He has complained of stomach pains lately.

It is understood the problem was not a serious one and might be due to Simpson's "off-season pace." O.J. has made one movie, frequent television appearances and hit the banquet trail since the NFL season ended last December.

by the $10,000 America Gold Cup for Formula Super Vee at 11 a.m.

Rising Formula 1 aspirant Elliott Forbes-Robinson of La Crescenta goes after his third America Gold Cup victory of the year, having won races earlier this year at Lime Rock, Conn., and Laguna Seca Raceway in Monterey last week.

Practice and qualifying for all classes will be held today from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Rentzel cleared, eager to rejoin Knox, Rams

The checkered pro football career of Lance Rentzel took a dramatic turn about Friday when the former all-pro wide receiver won reinstatement to the National Football League by commissioner Pete Rozelle after a year in exile.

Rentzel, who was suspended by Rozelle last July 24 for violating the terms of a probationary status the commissioner had imposed on him in 1971, was jubilant over the announcement and said he planned to rejoin the Rams rather than accept one of three offers from the new World Football League, including the Southern California Sun.

"I'm just as happy as I could be," the 30-year old Rentzel said after being advised by Rozelle at a hotel in Los Angeles. "I'm anxious to rejoin the Rams. They are still my football team and Chuck Knox is my coach. He's the greatest coach in my opinion — even though I played for him less than two weeks."

Rentzel pleaded guilty to a charge of marijuana possession last May which resulted in a $2,000 fine, a suspended jail sentence and finally the one-year suspension from the NFL.

During his year in exile, Rentzel wrote a novel — a follow-up to his first book which dealt with the indecent exposure incidents and the breakup of his marriage with entertainer-dancer Joey Heatherton.

As part of the brief statement issued by the NFL it also was pointed out that "Rentzel has been active during the time doing worthwhile volunteer community work."

"My biggest interest now is in writing," Rentzel said. "But I owe the Rams and the fans a lot. I haven't done much for them in the three seasons out here but I'll make up for that this season."

"We're very, very happy for Lance," said Knox.

Mr. Cockatoo Cortez choice

Mr. Cockatoo bids for his fourth consecutive victory and his first in stakes competition today when the vastly-improved son of Windy Sands faces 11 challengers in the $34,700 Cortez Handicap at Hollywood Park.

Those given the best chance to upset Mr. Cockatoo in the 11-furlong turf encounter are Pure Flight, working on a two-race win streak of his own, New Zealand-bred Gold Braid II, an impressive allowance winner over the Hollywood Park lawn last week, War Heim, a major stakes winner in his career and most recently second to Gold Braid in the aforementioned allowance event, and Outdoors, runner-up in two Florida hundred granders this year.

Mr. Cockatoo was claimed by Dan J. Agnew and trainer Jerry Fanning for $45,000 late in the Santa Anita meeting, and since then the five-year-old horse has won a pair of lakeside turf course races in sharp style.

Acclimatization Friday served warning that he would provide turf racing's big guns with all the competition they want in the upcoming, $123,000 Hollywood Park Invitational Turf Handicap.

Astray, London Company and Big Whippendale, all winners of hundred-granders already this year, will be spotting Acclimatization weight in that May 26, 12-furlong marathon, but 21,144 pa-time, was clocked in 1:48 1/2 and as a strong second choice and returned $4.60 and $3.80.

The scratch of Madison Palace reduced the field to four betting interests and there was win and place wagering only. Yvetot paid $5.60 and the entry of Tannhill and Portentous, favored at even money, finished three-four.

Wingo Belle, flashing the form that carried her to a Sequoia Handicap win at Hollywood last summer, captured the day's supporting feature by speeding 6 1/2 furlongs in 1:15 1/2.

That was the only winner of the day for leading jockey Laffit Pincay, who bounced back from a first-race spill to ride out the card.

Finley says wife can live in style on $100 a week

Combined News Services

Can the estranged wife of insurance magnate and sports proprietor Charles O. Finley find happiness and pay the bills on $100 a week?

Finley says she can. Shirley Finley filed for divorce March 15, maintaining there was an "irretrievable breakdown" in their marriage of 32 years. She had been receiving $1,250 a week under a temporary order and asked this week the payments be raised to $1,750 to keep her in the style to which she is accustomed.

ure and that prior to their breakup, Mrs. Finley ran their 250-acre LaPorte, Ind., farm for about $100 a week. He suggests she now receive the same amount plus some "reasonable" household expenses.

"WHAT I want to do Sunday is win the game, not fight," said Dave Schultz Friday. "We have to beat them to the puck, not all that other stuff. I'm not looking for any cheap shots and I'm not handing out any."

The noted pugilist of the Philadelphia Flyers was involved in three fights during Thursday's loss to Boston in the fifth game of the Stanley Cup playoff finals. The Flyers lead the series, 3-2, with the sixth game on their home ice Sunday.

PORTLAND has denied an Oregon Journal report that Lenny Wilkens of the Cleveland Cavaliers will be chosen coach of the Blazers.

"It's obviously false," said Stu Inman, vice president and player personnel director. "Not that Lenny would not become a serious candidate, along with two or three other people. All I can say is that we're actively pursuing the thing and if that story were true, it would save me a lot of work in the next several days."

EDDIE Arcaro, the No. 3 winner in American thoroughbred racing, placed an advance $20 off-track betting wager on Cannonade to win the Preakness.

"Because Cannonade won the Kentucky Derby, I think he'll win the Preakness. He's the best horse in that race," said Arcaro, adding, "but I don't have to be right."

Arcaro, who retired in 1961 after a 31-year riding career, said he'd "love to ride in the Preakness, but I couldn't make it. I couldn't run a quarter of a mile I'm so out of condition."

Eleven men, including five Garden State race track cashiers, have been arrested in connection with an alleged scheme to evade income taxes on track winnings. The suspects allegedly cashed winning tickets for others and agreed to keep the winners' names secret, thus helping them to avoid taxes on the winnings. In return, the suspects reportedly received 10 per cent of the winnings. Walt Frazier of the New York Knicks led the NBA all-star team voting and Boston's John Havlicek and Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar made the squad for the fourth successive year. Completing the club were Laker guard Gail Goodrich and Golden State forward Rick Barry. Second team honors went to Elvin Hayes (Washington), Spencer Haywood (Seattle), Bob McAdoo (Buffalo), Dave Bing (Detroit) and Norm Van Lier (Chicago). The $153 million Louisiana Superdome was spared from a construction workers strike Friday as the stoppage spread in South Louisiana. There were no pickets at the stadium site and workers reported as usual, but pickets were spotted at other construction sites in the New Orleans.

HE LATER temporarily left the newspaper business to join Busch's staff and during that period he was directed by Judge Charles Older to name his sources. He refused, citing newsmen's privilege.

Shield to probe gag violation

By NOEL SWANN
Our L.A. Bureau

Los Angeles attorney Theodore Shield, one-time deputy district attorney in Long Beach, has been chosen as special prosecutor to ferret out which of two attorneys in the Manson murder trial leaked information in violation of the judge's gag order.

Shield, 53, a resident of Rolling Hills Estates, said he would start his investigation Monday.

A partner in the firm of Shield and Smith, he was selected as the special prosecutor by State Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger from a list of names of several lawyers submitted by the County Grand Jury.

SUPERVISORS earlier this month called for a special prosecutor to probe the allegation of perjury in the case because both Younger and Dist. Atty. Joseph Busch had been involved in the Manson trial.

Supervisor James Hayes led the call for the special prosecutor because, he said, the issue of perjury and the contempt-of-court hearings facing newsmen William Farr needed to be resolved.

At the time of the Manson-family murder trial, Farr was working for the Los Angeles Herald Examiner. He obtained a transcript concerning an alleged plot by members of the cult to kidnap and murder a number of prominent celebrities.

He printed the story but at that time was protected from revealing the sources because of the state's "shield law" upholding a newsmen's right to keep his sources confidential.

HE LATER temporarily left the newspaper business to join Busch's staff and during that period he was directed by Judge Charles Older to name his sources. He refused, citing newsmen's privilege.

and was held in contempt of court because the judge said he was no longer a reporter.

Farr, now with the Los Angeles Times, already has spent 46 days in jail but presently is free pending the outcome of various appeals. A hearing on his latest appeal is scheduled for Monday.

In the course of hearings to determine who had given Farr the information, Farr said, two of the six attorneys in the case were involved. Subsequently, all six attorneys have denied under oath to Judge Older that they were responsible.

Part of the reason for calling for a special prosecutor was information released to the press recently by William Norris, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state attorney general.

NORRIS released information in a deposition from Stephen Kay, a member of the prosecution team in the Manson trial, which said he was threatened with demotion by then chief prosecutor Vincent Bugliosi if Kay told what he knew about the information illegally leaked to Farr.

Bugliosi also is seeking the Democratic nomination for state attorney general.

Shield said he would initially spend some time studying all the transcripts in the various hearings to familiarize himself with the case. He said he hopes to make a presentation to the grand jury within two weeks.

Hayes had noted that the statute of limitations runs out June 5 on the first of two separate perjury acts allegedly committed by the attorneys who swore they did not leak the information. Shield said he had been given varying dates as to when the statute of limitations ran out but added, "Obviously I will do my utmost to present any findings to the grand jury in time to meet such a deadline."

Match play

Youth favored in L.B. tournament

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

One characteristic of the Long Beach Match Play golf champion the last 10 years is that he was on a steady diet of golf—at least five rounds a week—when he won the title.

The second most common trait is youth. Only one winner in the last decade was more than 25 years old.

So when 64 golfers tee off today at Recreation Park in the first round of the 50-year-old tournament, the favoritism naturally belongs to the collegians, or the every-day players.

This means that four Long Beach State 49ers, Beau Baugh, Bob Abbey, Tony Campregher and Greg Hetzer, plus Dale Morrison of Cerritos College, bear watching. Baugh and Abbey, in opposite brackets, are the best bets to wind up in the finals May 26.

Defending champion Bill Deebie played daily a year ago but has since gone to work, so his performance isn't up to par. He could have trouble surviving the first round against Mike Grafft and figures to be in deep if he faces Campregher on Sunday.

One round will be played today, two on Sunday. The remaining eight golfers continue next weekend, all at Recreation Park.

Baugh, who tied Frank Adams and Howard Coleman for medalist honors last weekend at 143, 1-under-par, opens against Dave Joyner at 8 a.m. in a foursome that includes Deebie and Grafft.

Abbey, the Long Beach Masters champion, plays at 8:30 against Clint Owen, a member of the 49er jayvee team.

The oldtimers (over 50) always enjoy getting a crack at the youngsters and the first round will provide all of them except one with opponents who are under 30 years of age.

The seniors are Del Walker, a four-time city champion; Larry Griggs, the 1955 winner and this year's oldest entrant at 62; Tony Tinkham, John McMonegal, Ed McBratney, Willard Bryan and Les Klabunde.

The only champion since 1964 who wasn't an every-day player was Mountie Bedford, who won at Recreation Park in 1968, beating Dave Elder. Both men qualified this year.

The champions since 1964 have been Bill McCormick, Arne Dokka, Steve Cook, Bedford, McCormick, Kemp Richardson, Jim Gaumer, Mike Krantz and Deebie.

Courtney shoots 69, leads by stroke

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — Chuck Courtney, succeeding where more familiar names failed, fired a four-under 66 Friday and jumped in front by a stroke over first-round leader Hale Irwin and Rod Curt mid-way through the $250,000 Colonial National golf tournament.

Courtney, a lowly 95th on this year's money winning list having captured only $9,000, fought his way through the winds that swept the long, par-70 Colonial Country Club course for the second consecutive day to post a 36-hole total of four-under 136.

Irwin considered himself lucky to have scrambled to a 72 that left him with a 137 along with Curt, the Wintu Indian who shot 67 Friday in search of his first victory in the PGA's first designated tournament.

Some of the more famous names in golf lined up to challenge Courtney during the second round, but all of them faded.

Defending champion Tom Weiskopf came the closest, knocking a one-iron 245 yards downwind on the par-5 11th hole and running in a 12-foot eagle putt to shoot 68 and finish at two-under 138, two shots back.

Julius Boros and Dan Sikes were each at 139, Boros having shot a 70 and Sikes a 68.

Lee Trevino eagled the first hole but then found himself all over the golf course and had to settle for a 69 and a 141 two-round score. Jack Nicklaus at one time was two under for the tournament, but he knocked one in the water on 18 and finished at 140.

Leading money winner Johnny Miller withdrew from the tournament after a 78 on opening day and young Ben Crenshaw, the hero of the local coed set, shot an 80 and failed to make the cut.

"I'm supposed to be a good wind player," said Trevino, "but I hit the ball awful. I made pars from the river, from the trees, from the ball washers and from a lady's purse."

Hayes vows Juvenile Hall change

Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisor James Hayes Friday vowed he would "devote all my efforts to clean up the horrible conditions at the county's central Juvenile Hall."

Hayes issued the statement after publication of a news article outlining incidents of racial and sexual attacks and unsanitary conditions at the detention facility.

Hayes acknowledged that some of the statements attributed to juvenile offenders in the article "may have been exaggerated somewhat." But he said he believes the basic facts depicted were true, saying the article "all too graphically describes the inhuman, snake-pit conditions that youngsters are forced to endure in Juvenile Hall."

The supervisor, who has been busy setting up a series of public hearings aimed at improving the juvenile justice system, said he intends to make a personal inspection of conditions at the central hall.

"I will then work around the clock to correct that facility, no matter whose toes I have to step on and no matter what the cost," Hayes said. "All the screaming we hear about how much tougher we have to be with juvenile offenders doesn't really get to the heart of the problem. The basic fact is we are turning juvenile offenders into hardened criminals."

Rod Dedeaux's Trojans are bidding for their fifth consecutive NCAA championship and 10th national crown overall.
